Dating in Sikeston- 'There's Nothing at All to Do'

By MIKE JENSEN

The dating habits of the Southeast Missouri male are dear to my heart, since I pursue the custom of courting.

There are several theories about this custom with each generation to a degree employing similar dating tactics.

The male of the species, in theory the domineering and forceful one, is told he should take it upon himself to gather a prospective mate for the purpose of courting and determine if she is suitable for life by his side. This custom reaches back into eons of history with results effective enough to warrant its continuance.

I, of course, cannot speak for other generations, but as for my own, we often complain that Sikeston, if not all of Southeast Missouri, lacks variety of places to go while on a date.

I don't mean to imply that Sikeston is without areas of late night entertainment. Perish the thought. I simply mean that for a person between the ages of 18 and 24 (and there are 1,409 of us) the quality if not the quantity of potential dating areas is limited.

This problem is universal and by no means recent so I asked elders of the community about their youth and their dating practices.

Had times really changed that much or are we simply crying tears that have been shed for manyyears?

I first questioned Red Kirby on dating in his younger days.

Kirby's mind went back to 1922 when he was a fresh graduate of Sikeston high school.

He recalled that a big date back then was to go to the silent movies at the Malone Theater. The Malone is in the same place today.

"And there was always a dance, but there just weren't too many places to go," he recalled.

Just as the youth of today complain, Kirby said his crowd often was forced to go out of town for entertainment. Charleston was their second favorite stomping grounds.

Most basketball games and dances in Kirby's youth were held upstairs above the old city hall building. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is located there today.

"We were chaperoned pretty heavily at the dances and conducted ourselves okay," Kirby said.

Did they drink on dates?

"You could always manage to get it somewhere," Kirby said. "I guess it's a lot like it is today. Yes, kids drank on dates back then."

Kirby also says he feels that the kids of today are wilder with their dating habits. Money is the cause of it, he adds.

"We could go out on a date back then for a buck," he said. "A movie cost five or ten cents, but they didn't sell Cokes and popcorn like today."

Parents had more control over their children back then Kirby said.

"They would know where you were all the time."

Lt. Col. (Ret.) George T. Johnson is a few years younger than Kirby but his problems were similar in 1929-30.

Johnson lived eight miles from Sikeston in what he described as a "country environment". Transportation and economics were the differences that Johnson cited for dating today.

Key Laotian Town Taken

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese infantrymen under an umbrella of U.S. bombers and gunships captured the key Laotian town of Sepone today and cut the Ho Chi Minh trail network around it, Saigon headquarters announced.

President Nguyen Van Thieu sent a congratulatory message to field units praising them for their victory, headquarters announced.

Lt. Col. Tran Van An, the chief South Vietnamese spokesman in Saigon, called a special news conference to announce what he termed a victory.

"Today on March 6 at 1 p.m.," An said, "Vietnamese armed forces units have attacked and seized Sepone after inflicting heavy losses to the enemy." He said 283 North Vientamese troops were killed in and around Sepone today, many of them by heavy U.S. air strikes. By nightfall, he said, the North Vietnamese troops, elements of the veteran 320th Division withdrew.

"There are no enemy in Sepone now," he said.

Lt. Col. Le Thung Hien told newspapermen at the rear headquarters at Dong Ha in the north that the South Vietnamese around Sepone uncovered major stockpiles of war materiel, including 300 tons of munitions.

Sepone is the hub in a network of roads on the Ho Chi Minh trail and was considered a major North Vietnamese transshipment point, although U.S. planes long since pounded it into rubble. "We are in complete control," An said.

He claimed 536 North Vietnamese troops have been killed in two days of heavy fighting in and around Sepone, including 253 outside the town Friday.

South Vietnamese casualties were light he said, adding: "I don't have the numbers right now."

An said 13 of the enemy were captured.

"We destroyed and seized 52 machine guns, two 37 mm antiaircraft guns, five mortars, 17 B40 rocket-propelled grenade launchers, 170 individual weapons, 2,000 Chinese-made gas masks, five trucks, 300 tons of ammunition and 1,000 tons of food and rice," An continued.

"This victory has been reported by Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the 1st Corps commander, to President Thieu and to Gen. Cao Van Vien, chairman of the joint general staff. The president has requested Gen. Lam to transmit to all units participating in this victory his congratulations and compliments.

Sepone was a major objective of the 27-day-old drive into Laos. It lies along Highway 9 intersecting the Ho Chi Minh trail at a point 25 air miles west of the Vietnamese border.

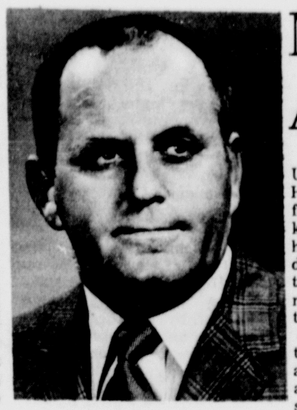
On the Vietnam side of the border, 19 of the enemy's rockets crashed into the allies' forward base at Khe Sanh and sources said two South Vietnamese were killed and 10 wounded. The U.S. Command said it had no reports of American casualties and damage was light.

Associated Press correspondent J.T. Wolkerstorfer reported from the northern front that the area struck by the rockets is congested by several infantry units and a major communications system.

The command disclosed that five more American helicopters and a fighter-bomber were shot down and destroyed supporting the Laos operation, and seven airmen were listed as missing. The losses brought to 52 the number of helicopters acknowledged by the command as downed, but sources said twice that number have been brought down. The command does not report as lost helicopters it retrieves from Laos. Three fighter-bombers also have been lost.

Other helicopters braved the heavy antiaircraft fire to ferry 1,000 South Vietnamese reinforcements to join 1,000 already near Sepone. Field reports said the reinforcements moved to the high ground north of the enemy transshipment point.

The magniturde of the U.S. air support of the operation was underscored in a U.S. communique that reported more than 2,400 helicopter missions into Laos Friday, double the number flown in any other day during the 27-day campaign.



James Morris

Morris Seventh To File

James Vernon Morris of 407 North Ingram has become the seventh candidate to file for the one-year expired term on the city council.

Morris joins Mrs. Anita Hope, Mrs. Nadean Dickerson, Glenn W. Milligan, William "Webb" Edwards, Kenneth Bridger, and Robert Jenkins as candidates for the post.

Morris was born in Sikeston and graduated from the public school system. He is the shop foreman at Sonny Presley's Chevrolet, where he has been employed 20 years.

The main problem facing the city, according to Morris, are the lack of modern equipment for the fire department and the clean-up needed on streets, roads and right-of-way.

Morris was instrumental in the formation of the volunteer rescue unit and is secretary of the volunteer firemen.

"I think a working man needs to be on the council to realize some things that need to be done," he said.

This is the first time Morris has entered politics and he said he did that at the urging of friends and business acquaintances.

Morris has three daughters, Verna, Dianna Sue, and Kimberly, all attending the public schools.

Another area that Morris points out needs improvement practices in purchasing city equipment.

A primary will be March 23 to reduce the seven candidates to the two top vote getters. Those two will then oppose each other in the April 6 general election.

The candidates are seeking the seat vacated by councilman Sam Harbin. Harbin announced his resignation to allow more time for his new position as superintendent of schools.

No Word of Airmen As Deadline Passes

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Ambassador William Handley appealed Friday night for the safe return of four kidnaped American servicemen held for $400,000 ransom. But the deadline for payment set by their kidnapers passed this morning with no word about their fate.

"It is my fervent hope that those who are holding the four airmen have heard my appeal and will release them soon and safely." Handley said in a statement this morning. He said the Turkish Foreign Ministry arranged the broadcast over the state radio.

The kidnapers, leftists called, the Turkish People's Liberation Army, demanded payment by 6 a.m. today—11 p.m. Friday EST—and said they would shoot the Americans if the money was not forthcoming.

The Turkish government refused to bow to the demand and after a meeting of the cabinet Friday night Labor Minister Seyfi Oxturk said, "You don't bargain with bandits."

The only official conciliatory gesture was the radio report of Handley's appeal.

President Nixon told a Washington news conference Thursday that the administration would not apply pressure on the Turkish government to negotiate with terrorists.

A mammoth search for the kidnapers by police and Turkish troops triggered a gun battle between students and troops Friday in which a student and a soldier were killed and more than a dozen persons wounded.

Troops tried to enter a dormitory of the Middle East Technical University and were met by a fussilade of shots and dynamite sticks from rooftops and windows. About 2,000 students were rounded up for questioning.

The four U.S. Air Force radar technicians were seized Thurday as they went from a radar station to their billet; in Ankara. All of them—S.Sgt. Jimmie J. Sexton of San Angelo, Tex.; and Airmen 1.C. Richard Caraszi of Stamford, Conn.; Larry J. Heavner of Denver; and James M. Gholson of Alexandria. Va.—were in civilian clothes and unarmed.

Barbara Sexton pleaded in a statement issued through a neighbor for her husband's release. Mrs. Sexton, who is five months pregnant and has a 13month-old son, is the only dependent of the four kidnaped Americans in Ankara.

The kidnapers' last statement, delivered with the letters, said that if the Turkish government did not broadcast acceptance of their demands "we will wait resolutely for the deadline."

Rampant student unrest, political disturbances and antiAmerican acts have led to tension for the past several months in Turkey.

Thieves Strike At High School

Thieves struck at the high school yesterday taking almost $200 in merchandise.

Rick Spears of 401 Carroll reported to police that yesterday a pair of tennis shoes, a baseball glove and baseball, and a physical education uniform were taken from his locker. Value of the missing items was placed at $46.50.

Billy Wake of 920 Park reported that a $140 cornet was taken from the band room.

Three Injured In Two Wrecks

Three were injured in two area traffic mishaps yesterday.

One mile north of Malden on highway 25 at 7:45 a.m., a 1955 Chevrolet traveling south, driven by Charles Headd, 22, Malden, went out of control and overturned in a ditch, the highway patrol said.

Headd sustained cuts and a brain injury and was taken to Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

At 5:25 p.m. on I-55 16 miles south of Sikeston, a 1968 Pontiac traveling south, driven by Larrie Roberts, 21, Kennett, was in the passing lane and was struck in the side by a southbound 1971 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Leonard Worton, 42, Houston, when the pickup cut in on the Pontiac, the patrol said.

The Pontiac spun around and stopped, and the pickup went out of control, went across the median and overturned, hurtling a tank from the pickup through the window of a 1971 Chevrolet traveling north, driven by Luther Bledoe, 46, Forrest City, Ark., causing the Bledoe car to go into a ditch.

Worton and Bledoe sustained minor injuries and were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Thant Wants Israel to Pull Back

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant wants Israel to "give a commitment to withdraw its troops from occupied United Arab Republic territory" to comply with proposals made by Middle East peace mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

Thant also praised Egypt Friday for a "positive reply" to peace moves by the Swedish diplomat and appealed to Israel and Egypt to maintain the Suez Canal cease-fire that is due to expire Sunday.

In a report to the U.N. Security Council on the progress of Jarring's indirect talks with Israel, Egypt and Jordan, Thant said there were "considerable elements of promise," but expressed concern that Jarring's proposals did not break the deadlock between the Israelis and their Arab neighbors.

Jarring proposed on Feb. 8 that Israel drop back to lines that existed between Egypt and British-mandated Palestine before Israel became an independent state in 1948. This would mean Israel would give up the Sinai Peninsula, occupied during the six-day 1967 war.

Jarring also asked Egypt for a commitment to a formal peace agreement with Israel, to which Thant said Egypt gave a "positive reply."

Of immediate concern, Thant said, is the expiration of the cease-fire. He said, "I once more appeal to the parties to withhold fire, to exercise military restraint and to maintain the quiet which has prevailed in the area since August 1970."

Sources said the United States insisted in a meeting of the Big Four U.N. delegates Friday that their communique include a request that the truce be extended, but the Soviet delegate objected. As a result, the meeting broke up without a communique.

There was no official comment from Israel sources at the United Nations on the Thant report.

But Deputy Premier Yigal Allon declared in a speech in occupied Jordan that Israel would negotiate with Egypt without previous conditions on borders, provided Egypt would do the same. Allon said Israel had territorial demands and maps to submit but would save them for the negotiating table.

Egypt has demanded that Israel pull back to its boundaries before the 1967 war. Israel says it will not give up Old Jerusalem that it took from Jordan, the Golan Heights, captured from Syria, and certain other territory it says is essential for its security.

In Cairo, the Palestine National Council broke up its conference but agreed to attempt to work out differences among the 11 quarrelling guerrilla organizations during the next three months.

Yasir Arafat, head of the predominant Al Fatah group, said the council decided to try "a change of tactics but not strategy. We are not giving up the liberation."

Harlech Sees Third Threat to Mankind

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — Lord Harlech, former British ambassador to the United States, said Friday night a third threat to mankind—the threat of self-destruction—has developed since Winston Churchill spoke 25 years ago of the marauders of war and tyranny.

Harlech warned against the continued degradation of the environment in an address before 1,400 persons at Westminster College that marked the 25th anniversary of Churchill's "Iron Curtain" speech.

He said in the last quarter century there have been "profound changes in the world — few of them for the better."

Noting that Churchill spoke optimistically of "enough for all" in the dawning of an age of materialistic well - being, Lord Harlech said the world's population has increased by at least 1.25 billion since the Churchill speech in Fulton March 5, 1946.

Barrage Hits House on Final Day for New Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — New legislation flooded the Missouri House Friday, the final day for introduction of bills and proposed constitutional amendments.

They filtered in as the House worked on bills already on the calendar. Among those advanced was a bill to establish the office of commissioner on administration under the governor.

He would have the day-to-day task of running agencies under the governor's administration. By amendment he would have to be at least 30 years old, at least five years a resident of Missouri, and hold a college degree in public affairs or business. He would have to have at least six years of experience as a business administrator.

Rep. Richard J. Rabbitt, DSt. Louis, offered a congressional redistricting bill that doesn't redistrict. It merely shows the districts as they are now but, Rabbitt said, it would give the House a bill on which to work in an effort to re-align the districts in accordance with the 1970 federal census results.

Rabbitt also introduced a bill to raise the daily expense allowance of legislators from the present $10 to $20 and to increase the number of House employes from 125 to 198. The latter provision would assure every one of the 163 members at least one secretary or clerk.

A bill offered by Rep. James F. Conway, D St. Louis, would add a special income tax with the revenue going into an urban crisis fund. The money would be allocated to the cities with Kansas City and St. Louis getting double portions, cities between 2,500 and 4,500 population getting single portions and those between 500 and 2,500 getting half portions.

Other measures would:

Change the Constitution to eliminate the county property tax and institute instead a special income tax to be collected by the state and returned to the counties. The tax would not be levied on net incomes of less than $7,000. On incomes between $7,000 and $8,000 it would be 2 per cent and would range up to 20 per cent on net incomes of over $200,000.

Require that the state pay the full cost of public education at an estimated outlay of about $700,000 a year.

Provide that any federal funds coming to the state on any federal revenue sharing plan would be allocated to the counties and the city of St. Louis on the basis of population if the fund is not given to the state for a specific purpose.

License pawnbrokers.

Let restaurants get liquor licenses if their food business grosses $200,000 a year.

Have the State Board of Education accredit and license private schools.

Require the state to provide office space in Kansas City for all Jackson County legislators.

Establish a state land development agency to issue bonds and provide public improvement in cities, including street, sewer or water lines, utilities or recreation facilities.

Create a seven-member environmental improvement authority with power to issue bonds for construction of antipollution systems and either lease or sell them to municipalities.

Require that after next Jan. 1 a car owner would have to show proof of responsibility before getting his car registration.

Levy a sales tax on public parking facilities.

Require the comptroller issue monthly reports on the condition of the state's finances.

Levy a countywide school tax in St. Louis and allocate it to the school districts on an equal basis so poor districts would have better financing than they now have.

Ban nudist organizations or distribution of their literature in Missouri.

Thursday, a bill was offered by Rep. Joe Schorgl, D-Kansas City, that would repeal the present sales tax exemption on mining machinery, newsprint and the sale or rental of film or refords. It would also levy the 3 per cent sales tax on all advertising except that appearing in newspapers.

Another bill would establish a Missouri Surplus Money Investment Board, composed of the state treasurer, auditor and comptroller. The board would decide where and how much inactive state funds would be invested.

A proposed constitutional change would let the Department of Agriculture make agricultural development loans to farmers.

WHY DON'T THEY ATTACK THE EMEMY?

Recently, when the freedom-fighting forces of South Vietnam crossed over the Laotion border to cut off the so-called "Ho Chi Minh trail," a few raucous vioces were raised in Washington to sharply criticize the move. The attacks — by four U. S. Senators in particular — were leveled against our President, our armed forces, our Vietnamese allies and friends, and against the frightening thought that we might abandon our long-standing "no-win" policy. But nowhere have we read the slightest murmer of complaint or criticism, on the part of the four leading critics, against the communist enemy. The unavoidable question is "Why not?"

The South Vietnamese forces found tons upon tons of communist military supplies, weapons and ammunition stashed away in caves, bunkers and tunnels, not more than 20 miles inside the border of Laos from free Vietnam — but hundreds of miles away from the Red supply bases in Communist North Vietnam and Red China. For reasons which we cannot understand, the noisy critics in Washington seem to have forgotten completely that in Geneva, Switzerland, on July 23, 1962, an international pact was signed by the official delegations of 14 nations. to guarantee the freedom and neutrality of Laos. The fourteen nations were the United States, the USSR, Britain, France, Canada, Communist China, Burma, Poland, North Vietnam, Cambodia, India, South Vietnam, Thailand and Laos.

The agreements, solemnly signed by North Vietnam, China, and the USSR, specifically stated, among other things that:

"They will not establish (in Laos) ... any foreign military base, foreign strongpoint or other foreign military installation of any kind," and

"They will not use (Laotion territory) ... for interference in the internal affairs of other countries."

It is bad enough that the Red enemy is using the territory of Laos to set up supply bases for their weapons of death to be used against the peaceful nations of Cambodia, Thailand and South Vietnam. It is worse that they do so in complete and cynical violation of their own promises not to do so, made only nine years ago. If the noisy complainers in Washington are truly concerned with the preservation of world peace, why do they not attack and condemn the Communists who are not only "endangering world peace, but who are at the same time violating their own international agreements? Let the carping critics take their complaints to Hanoi, to Peking, to Moscow, and to the United Nations — and not to the White House or the Pentagon.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK

Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. will celebrate their 59th birthday on March 7, 1971, during National Girl Scout Week -- March 7-13. Founded in 1912 in Savannah, Georgia, American Girl Scouting has grown up with the nation. The theme of the organization for the years 1966-71, "Values to Hold, Worlds to Explore," represents values held constant for almost 60 years -- but expressed each day, month, and year in a modern and timely way.

Today's Girl Scouts work against poverty and inequality; last year the organization's National Board of Directors voted to support the major goal objectives of the Report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. The 3.5 million members express their beliefs -- their values -- through service in their own and neighboring communities, in schools, libraries, centers, hospitals, parks, or wherever good will and dedication can be useful.

Let's wish them a heartfelt "Happy Birthday" during their week.

VA HOSPITALS IN TROUBLE, FIVE-MONTH STUDY SHOWS

While America's 166 - hospital Veterans Administration system provides basically good care for most patients, it is also suffering from "critical malfunctions," a five-month study by Reader's Digest has found.

Reporting on the study in the magazine's March issue, author Kenneth Tomlinson says that inadequate funding and management deficiencies have caused equipment shortages and breakdowns in many hospitals, along with critical personnel problems. One result is needlessly long hospital stay for veterans.

"In many VA hospital," he writes, "X-ray series that should be completed in 24 hours take from three to ten days because of faulty equipment and lack of personnel." Even in a relatively modern hospital such as the VA's Miami, Fla. unit, the stay for surgical patients was 15 per cent longer in 1970 than in the previous years, mainly because pre-surgical tests were delayed.

Personnel problems, too, are acute, the article says. Starting salaries in many categories are substantially lower than those for comparable jobs in community hospitals. Result: VA officials complain that it takes months for them to fill vacancies that a community hospital can fill vacancies that a community hospital can fill in days.

Tragedy can arise from these shortages. One veteran at the Los Angeles VA hospital needed special nursing care to clear periodic accumulations of mucus from a breathing tube in his throat. But the understaffed hospital could not provide the needed care, and the man died of suffocation when his tube went uncleared.

According to Dr. Baldwin Lamson, director of hospitals at UCLA, the Los Angeles VA facility has "approximately one half of the personnel we consider essential."

Ironically, the article declares, many VA hospital administrators aggravate these problems by fighting to keep men in hospitals who could better be treated on an out-patient basis. The reason, says Tomlinson, is because VA hospitals receive most of their funding on the basis of the number of beds filled, rather than the total activity in the hospital as a whole. Moreover, VA regulations prohibit outpatient treatment for certain types of non-service-related illness.

Thus in Miami, as one example, a veteran was admitted for a three-day stay to treat a mild asthma attach which a community hospital would have treated in a few hours.

"In every major hospital I visited," Tomlinson writes, "doctors and nurses could say that some 25 per cent of their patients -- the elderly, the alcoholic, those with minor ailments -- should not be occupying an expensive hospital bed."

While needed construction goes unfunded, a number of small, poorly utilized VA hospitals in isolated areas stubbornly remain open. For example, the town of Marlin, Tex. (population 6,000) boasts a VA hospital, yet is just 40 minutes from an 800-bed VA facility in Temple, Tex., and just 30 minutes from the 1,000-bed Waco, Tex. facility -- a psychiatric hospital with general medical facilities.

In 1965 President Lyndon Johnson proposed closing 11 outdated or isolated VA facilities, at an estimated saving of 24 million tax dollars annually. The proposal was vigorously fought by Donald E. Johnson, then national commander of the American Legion. Today Donald E. johnson is VA Administrator, with "no thought of shutting down a single veteran facility."

Yet, Tomlinson declares, "top-ranking VA officials from previous administrations feel strongly that many hospitals should be closed,and their resources diverted to upgrade university-affiliated acute-care centers." Other steps to improve the system might include treating eligible veterans as outpatients, and revising the present funding formula to reflect overall level of hospital activities, rather than just the number of filled beds.

The VA has itself proposed dividing the system into 37 geographical regions, each to contain a core hospital to treat acutely ill patients, and a number of peripheral units for the less seriously ill.

Tomlinson notes that VA medicine has made great strides since World War II days; every VA hospital today is fully accredited, and 94 per cent are affiliated with university medical schools. Both in medical care and research, the VA picture has many bright spots.

Still, the problems persist. And with the VA system costing $1.9 billion a year, the American taxpayer has a substantial stake in reform.

THIS COULD BANKRUPT EMPLOYERS

Thousands, possibly millions of employers of the United States could be put out of business if Congress enacts a law advocated by the President.

It is for a full coverage health and hospital insurance plan under which the employer would pay two - thirds of the cost, the employee would pay one -third of it.

It would add billions to present costs of doing business, whether small or large. Business is already plagued with rapidly rising costs and charges from every direction. It could be that this measure would kill the proverbial goose that lays the golden egg by providing the last straw needed to push some businesses into failure, creating more unemployment.

There is nothing wrong with insurance that will protect people, in fact we need it. But we do believe the financial burden should be largely the responsibility of the person who gets the benefits.

PIE IN FACE, HE PULLED OUT APLOMB

Like these presidential commission straights were having a hearing in, uh, you know, Washington, on obscenity and pornography. No, man, I don't mean the Vietnam war and the military budget. I mean, bourgeois - type obscenity, like sex and porny pics and, you know, four - letter words.

Anyway, this hippie character from the Underground Press Syndicate was testifying, trying to get it through to the straights that nobody had a right to stifle his, you know, creativity. Then all of a sudden he lets fly a cream pie right in the face of the straight who was questioning him, some University of Washington sociology professor.

Man, talk about a put - down. The straights just sat there, uh, you know, gaping.

Funny thing, though. The one with the pie running down his face didn't DO anything. Just said, "Don't bug me. I'm asking you a question."

Now what kind of way to, you know, behave is that?

Human nature being what it is, pure altruism is a rather scarce commodity. It functions on a hit or miss basis and can never be depended upon, at least at the present stage of human development, to solve the bills of mankind. Political attempts to solve these ills through massive government welfare programs, more often than not, bog down in self - serving bureaucracy. These are the reasons why the trend toward business solutions of such things as finding jobs for the hard - core unemployed is highly encouraging.

The nation's businessmen are tackling the problem as an opportunity for progressive minded industries to strengthen the economic system upon which their existence depends by bringing the fruits of private enterprise to more people. This means more jobs and more braodly - based high living standards. By the same token, improving the environment is now looked upon as a business problem. The utility industry has become a leader in this new - horizon type of business operation. A utility company is a fixed part of every community. Therefore, it has a proprietary interest in community building.

The head of the American Gas Association, Mr. W. Morton Jacobs, speaking for one of the nation's largest industry associations, described how the Southern California business community is mounting an attack on various social problems, including smog, bad transportation and job training for the large Mexican - American and Negro populations. His view of business responsibility is more or less typical of the new trend. He says, "The role of the businessman is not one but many. He should first dedicate much of this time, talents and his buitl -in problem -solving skills to the rebuilding of our cities. He should dedicate them, to the limit of business prudence, to all the ills that affect human envrionment . . . Perhaps most important, he should take the initiative and start now."

DOWN TO THE LAST BULLET

In their sweep of Communist sanctuaries in Cambodai, which is limited to a penetration of exactly 21.7 miles (35 kilometers), American troops have discovered vast caches of arms and supplies.

At one point, a wire dispatch quoted the Pentagon as announcing the operation had captured enough ammunition for the communists to have conducted 719 small hit -and -run attacks on South Vietnamese cities.

Not 718 attacks, not 720 attacks, but precisely 719.

This is what builds confidence in the military mind — its mastery of the fine logistical details. As for the larger question, when the war is going to end, that's anybody's guess.

TIME FOR AN ANSWER

During the long hearings into the affairs of the prescription drug industry, handpicked witnesses have time after time left the impression that doctors and drug firms, by and large, have failed to perform as conscientiously as the public has a right to expect.

Few witnesses have been permitted to appear with the other side of the story. All the public has heard is that one drug is just as good as another if it bears the same generic name, irrespective of where it was manufactured. Various governmental agencies and spokesmen for investigative bodies have harped on the theme of "Therapeutic Equivalency" in a campaign against the use by doctors of drugs bearingthe names of outstanding pharmaceutical manufacturers. The campaign continues despite growing scientific evidence that therapeutic equivalency is a figment of the bureaucratic imagination. Representatives from the Academy of General Practice, the American Medical Association and highly qualified practicing physicians, who have sought the witness stand to present the case for doctors and the drug industry, have been shunted aside -- including a Portland, Oregon, physician who resents the one - sided testimony.

This physician, Dr. Clinton S. McGill, a private family physician, has never had an opportunity to express his views before the Congressional Subcommittee investigating the affairs of the pharmaceutical industry, although this Committee has apparently been only too glad to provide a forum for the views of the critics. However, for the record, in speaking before a meeting of colleagues and drug manufacturers, he said, "I will continue to insist on product identification .... It seems to me that if the ... Subcommittee were seriously considering the best intersts of the public they would be the first to demand product identification. Then ... any kind of an abnormal reaction, any question of therapeutic value, any problem involving the quality of the product .... could be traced right back to the source ... there is a difference between products bearing the same generic label ... there is such a thing as quality control... the well - earned reputation of the ethical drug companies is something of value!" The question the public has a right to ask is why mor qualified spokesmen have not been heard on this subject.

WORTH KNOWING: A dampened terry towel, wrung out and draped over a hanger in your clothes closet overnight, can supply enough moisture to help remove some of the wrinkles from your clothes ... Q & A: "I see many young men wearing button - down collar shirts with tuxedo. Is this permissable?" A tuxedo is formal. A button -down shirt is casual and informal. Combining the two is the height of poor grooming ... There were mice in the basement, so the young married couple decided to set traps for the pests. One trap was placed by a box of apples and the other was placed by a box of nuts.

Once the traps had been set, the man and his wife went to bed. They had just turned out the lights when a loud "Snap" sounded from the basement. The man leaped out of bed and ran downstairs to inspect the catch. His wife followed as far as the top of the basement stairs, where she stopped and called down:

"Did you catch him by the apples, Darling?"

"Came the answer from the depths of the basement, "No, Dear."

STATE DOESN'T NEED 'PLUMBING CZAR'

A regulatory measure pending in the House of the General Assembly which appears contrary to the best interests of all Missourians except plumbers.

The bill, introduced by State Rep. Eugene Mazzuca, South St. Louis Democrat, at the request of Plumbers Local 35 of St. Louis, would place control of outstate plumbing in the hands of one man — a plumber appointed by the governor.

It would, in effect, create a plumbing "czar" or "dictator," since that one man would be determining the state's plumbing code for all Missourians living outside of St. Louis, St. Louis County, Kansas City and Jackson County, which are exempted by reason of size in population.

The proposal, being pushed by the plumbing industry, has been strongly criticized by the Consulting Engineers Council of Missouri, which contends it would "greatly increase" construction costs without corresponding benefits.

Council officers charge the bill is "self - serving in terms of administration," that it creates a plumbing dictator and provides for no appeals and no specific methods of licensing plumbers.

Another critic of the proposed legislation, Neal J. Campbell, winner of the 1961 St. Louis Award for helping draft St. Louis' model building code, said the bill is "so vague and ambiguous" it would be thrown out of court on its first test. It is so broad, he noted, it would cover a cistern and pump which a farmer might have for his own home's water system.

It could even prohibit anyone from changing a washer in his faucet, Campbell asserted.

Two years ago, in the last regular session of the Legislature similar bills were introduced in the House and Senate, calling for the establishment of a commission dominated by plumbers to oversee a statewide plumbing code. These measures sensibly were rejected.

Missourians don't need special interest legislation now anymore than they did then. Regulations should be designed to benefit the great majority of citizens, not a small minority. The bill calling for a plumbing commissar appears to fail that test. Therefore it should be thrown out.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

NEW WAR ON NIXON: Shocked Labor Chiefs Unite To Fight Federal Indictments Over Political Spending.

WASHINGTON: -- Since Eve ate apples, Lord Byron once said, much depends on dinner for the hungry sinner. This appears to be a short course in political action apparently now very offensive to the Justice Dept.

Attorney General John Mitchell seems to believe that political dinners are the root of all evil, if the $100- and $1,000-a-plate ducats are purchased by unions for the good of the "party," be it Republican or Democratic.

About a year and a half ago, he pushed through the indictment of sailors' chief Paul Hall, pragmatic head of the Seafarers, for dispensing fiscal largesse to Congressional candidates. The other day the Justice Dept. hit little Tony Boyle of the United Mine Workers on similar charges of violating the Corrupt Practices Act.

And some of the Attorney General's agents are looking into fraternal financing of federal candidates by building and construction trade unions -- especially on the West Coast.

There have been some indictments of shipping companies and banks. Mr. Mitchell shows a rather equalitarian, even insouciant, manner in all this which may cause snowblindness at upcoming Democratic as well as Republican fund-raising banquets -- so glaring will the reflection be from the empty white-covered tables.

In 1969, the Justice Dept. hit Paul Hall for contributing about $1 million to both Democrats and Republicans and for buying tickets to Richard Nixon's gala victory dinner allegedly with central union funds. Now the indictment of the miners' Tony Boyle and company include somewhat the same charges. The miners' Labor Non Partisan League (LNPL— gave $30,000 to the Salute-to-Humphrey Dinner Committee.

Incidentally, under the law, the donee is as guilty as the donor if the latter is convicted!

If convicted, Mr. Hall and some of his colleagues could do quite a stretch in jail. So could the perpetually aggravated Tony Boyle -- about 32 years worth of prison if convicted on all counts.

When sailor Hall was hit, the word spread that is was just a tough break and after all it was Attorney General Ramsey Clark who started it all in the final days of Lyndon Johnson's administration.

The technicalities of the indictment are not vital here. Point is that Paul Hall stood up, shouted you won't put "the bull" on us, come and get us the hard way, we'll fight the whole distance. And everybody prepared to watch former ship engine oiler Hall square off with the Justice Dept. After all Mr. Hall has not lost many, not to Lyndon Johnson, the Canadian government, old Egypt, the Soviet Union or Jimmy Hoffa.

And not long after the indictment, Paul Hall's intimate friend George Meany, making it two heavyweights for the price of one fight, joined in and charged that the government was trying to "intimidate the labor movement" and curtail its special political machinery such as the Committee on Political Education (COPE), Hall's own Seafarers' Political Activity Donation committee (SPAD), the auto union's Citizen Action Program (CAP) and even the Teamsters' Democrat, Republican, Independent Voter Education (DRIVE) networks. Virtually every union has a nonpartisan league. "We take the position that we are not going to be intimidated," Meany said at that time. Now, under the guidance of the Justice Dept., the special grand jury here has indicted the miners chief -- and the labor leaders are distrubed.

Their political leagues -- all under acronyms such as COPE, DRIVE, CAP, etc. -- buy tickets. They have been planning to buy them for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's New York State Republican dinner this spring; for the Democratic banquets to liquidate the Democratic national debt of some $9 million, and even for the upcoming soirees of the Republican National Committee.

Most unions have favorite congressmen -- for lobbying on maritme, import and export, special subsidies, civil service laws and a host of other needs.

But now they hear those prison doors clanging -- and not only for what they have been planning to do in 1972 but for what they may have done in 1968 and back into history. No doubt John Mitchell has declared war on the labor movement. He has hit them where it hurts. He will cripple their influence on th eHill and at the national nominating conventions if he sends Mr. Hall or the miners group to prison.

The attorney general appears determined to smash an entire political way of life. If it is a crime to buy tickets, it is also a crime to sue union money on union cars, printing, telephone banks, literature, computers -- the whole gamut -- for federal candidates.

If the use of union dollars, through the political committees, can lead to charges of conspiracy and embezzlement there will be a sharp curtailment of activity though not of political propaganda. It will hit many a Republican congressman such as Jerry Ford. But it will hit the Democrats hardest.

The indictment of the 66-year-old Tony Boyle on some 13 counts has needled most of the national labor leaders. Paul Hall can take care of himself. But Tony Boyle, faced by the attacks on the United Mine Workers, is preparing to negotiate with the coal operators, struggling under the ghost-like saga of the late imperious John Lewis who just never bothered to account for such details as the dispersion of millions of dollars. Thus, the miners leader is particulary vulnerable. He was seeking cover in the United Steel Workers of America and had been talking with its chief I.W. Abel about merging with it.

Now he faces 32 years in prison and huge fines for contributing politically. And the others are next. It will be taken for granted that this all was cleared by the White House.

Obviously the war is on.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Some weary war strategists, who have followeed the confidential communiques from Saigon, have an eerie feeling that history is repeating itself.

Back in 1966, the reports to the Pentagon gave the impression that the U.S. was close to victory. They claimed that the Viet Cong had been hounded out of their hideouts by search-and-destroy missions and B-52 raids. Left behind in the overrun sanctuaries, assertedly, were tons of desperately needed food, arms and medical supplies.

The black-pajamaed, bark-helmeted guerrillas, specialists in ambush, supposedly were becoming the ambushed. Their morale had been rubbed raw, it was said, by constant harassment. Their losses both in casualties and defections had been so severe, according to the communiques, that the Viet Cong had been forced to conscript 15-year-old from the villages.

The secret reports also described the hopelessness in Hanoi. The rulers were reported to be weary of the war, divided between Moscow and Peking. Supposedly, they realized North Vietnam, even with Chinese support, could hever hope to match American naval and air power.

An aide told us he watched President Johnson once in 1966 stroke his chin with satisfaction as he studied a top-secret intelligence summary prepared in news capsule form for his easy reading. After awhile, LBJ looked up from his reading. "The war," he said, "should be over in 1967."

HISTORY REPEATS

Today, the intelligence reports contain the same hint that the war might be won after all. Enemy forces in South Vietnam are reported to be so starved for supplies that they are incapable of a major defensive. Their lifeline to the sea has been cut off, and the South Vietnamese are in the process of servering the remaining lifeline though Laos.

This Ho Chi Minh Trail complex is a spiderweb of roads and trails, many of them covered with camouflaged canopies. The South Vietnamese have destroyed tons of supplies and ripped up a few miles of fuel pipeline.

The confidential reports acknowledge that the South Vietnamese have become bogged down in the Laotian jungle. But they are said to be held up more by the rugged, unfamiliar terrain and the elaborate trail system than by enemy resistance.

There have been North Vietnamese counterattacks, but these assertedly had been expected. The battle reports claim the North Vietnmese have been getting the worst of it--with casualties as high as five to one--because of the downpour of hot lead and exploding bombs on enemy positions from the air.

Intelligence reports on Hanoi, meanwhile, tell of weariness, divisions and discouragement within the ruling circles. Some of the reports read almost like carbon copies of those written five years ago.

VICTORY IN '72

"By early 1972," President Nixon confided to Alice Roosevelt Longworth at a recent White House dinner,"I believe we will have achieved the objectives for which we went into South Vietnam in the first place."

The optimism around the White House reminds Senator Hubert Humphrey, for one,of the mood that prevailed in 1966.

The former Vice President was invited to the White House the other day for a private briefing on the Vietnam War. Henry Kissinger, the President's chief foreign policy adviser, spoke hopefully, almost eagerly about the latest developments.

"I don't want to be unkind," said Humphrey, "but this is the same thing I have heard before."

Kissinger insisted that the situations was "different," that North Vietnam had been "weakened" by the prolonged war.

"I hope you are right," said Humphrey. But he went away shaking his head.

SUPPRESSION OF INFORMATION

The University of Missouri, home of the famed Freedom of Information Center, doesn't practice the information policy it preaches. Its three-man Finance Committee has adamantly refused to give Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., any information on its utility stock holdings.

Comptroller R.H. Benzoni told us the committee refused Metcalf the information on its stock portfolio by the two-one vote, even though it has made the same information available to some localpapers. Metcalf has delved into the stock portfolio of 60 universities. The home of the Freedom of Information Center was one of only two refusing the data.

By comparing the corporate holdings of universities to the tiny number of consumer-oriented courses, Metcalf has sought to show an axis between the giant private utility firms and the academic world. He found the universities who responded to his poll held $905.5 million in oil, gas and electric company stocks.

ARSENIC AND LACE

Many members of the Chi Omega sorority have contaced us since we exposed how the lively, antique sorority head, 88-year-old Mary Love Collins, has kicked out chapters for pledging blacks.

One member, who battled for an end to racial intolerance in the sorority, told us of her ordeal with Mrs. Collins. After she protested Chi Omega's policies, she got a letter the peppery Mrs. Collins saying: "You are committed to the political-theology which is in harmony with Marxist-Socialist-Cecil Rhodes' One-World-Ism reflected in the United Nations Charter."

Mrs. Collins demanded the member's sorority badge back.

Rules For Raising Children

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago you printed Twelve Rules For Raising Children. I carried the column in my wallet until it became so dog-eared and yellowed with age that it is no longer legible. Please print it again, Ann. It's worth a repeat. --San Antonio Mother.

Dear Mother: Here it is. Thanks for asking:

1. Remember that a child is a gift from God, the richest of all blessings. Do not attempt to mold him in the image of yourself, your father, your brother or your neighbor. Each child is an individual and should be permitted to be himself.

2. Don't crush a child's spirit when he fails. And never compare him with others who have outshone him.

3. Remember that anger and hostility are natural emotions. Help your child to find socially acceptable outlets for these normal feelings or they may be turned inward and erupt in the form of physical or mental illness.

4. Discipline your child with firmness and reason. Don't let your anger throw you off balance. If he knows you are fair you will not lose his respect or his love. And make sure the punishment fits the crime. Ever the youngest child has a keer sense of justice.

5. Remember that each child needs two parents. Present a united front. Never join with your child against your mate. This can create in your child (as well as in yourself) emotional conflicts. It can also create feelings of guilt, confusion and insecurity.

6. Do not hand your child everything his little heart desires. Permit him to know the thrill of earning and the joy of achieving. Grant him the greatest of all satisfactions -- the pleasure that comes with personal accomplishment.

7. Do not set yourself up as the epitome of perfection. This is a difficult role to play 24 hours a day. You will find it easier to communicate with your child if you let him know that Mon and Dad can err, too.

8. Don't make threats in anger, or impossible promises when you are in a generous mood. Threaten or promise only that which you can live up to. To a child, a parent's word means everything. The child who has lost faith in his parents has difficulty believing in anything.

9. Do not smother your child with superficial manifestations of "love." The purest and healthiest love expresses it self in day-in, day-out training which breeds self-confidence and independence.

10. Teach your child there is dignity in hard work, whether it is performed with callused hands that shovel coal or skilled fingers that manipulate surgical instruments. Let him know a useful life is a blessed one and a life of ease and pleasure-seeking is empty and meaningless.

11. Do not try to protect your child against every small blow and disappointment. Adversity strengthens character and makes us compassionate. Trouble is the great equalizer. Let him learn it.

12. Teach your child to love God and to love his fellow men. Don't SEND your child to a place of worship -- TAKE him there. Children learn from example. Telling him something is not teaching him. If you give your child a deep and abiding faith in God it can be his strength and his light when all else fails.

In Defense of Women

MARRIAGE AND THE LAW

This was not always the case. No more than a century ago, even by American law, the most sentimental in the world, the husband was the head of the family firm, lordly and autonomous. He had authority over the purse-strings, over the children, and even over his wife. He could enforce his mandates by appropriate punishment, including the corporal. His sovereignty and dignity were carefully guarded by legislation, the product of thousands of years of experience and raiocination. He was safeguarded in his self-respect by the most elaborate and efficient devices, and they had the support of public opinion.

Consider, now, the changes that a few short years have wrought. Today, by the laws of most American states — laws proposed, by most cases, by maudlin and often notoriously extravagant agitators, and passed by sentimental orgy — all of the old rights of the husband have been converted into obligations. He no longer has any control over his wife's property; she may devote its income to the family or she may squander that income upon idle follies, and he can do nothing. She has equal authority in regulating and disposing of the children and, in the case of infants, more than he. There is no law compelling her to do her share of the family labour: she may spend her whole time in cinema theatres or gadding about the shops as she will. She cannot be forced to perpetuate the family name if she does not want to. She cannot be attacked with masculine weapons, e. g. fists and firearms, when she makes an assault with feminine weapons, e. g., snuffling, invective and sabotage. Finally, no lawful penalty can be visited upon her if she fails absolutely, either deliberately or through mere incapacity, to keep the family habitat clean, the children in order, and the victuals eatable.

Now view the situation of the husband. The instant he submits to marriage, his wife obtains a large and inalienable share in his property, including all he may acquire in future; in most American states the minimum is one-third, and, failing children, one-half. He cannot dispose of his real estate without her consent; he cannot even deprive her of it by will. She may bring up his children carelessly and idiotically, cursing them with abominable manners and poisoning their nascent minds against him, and he has no redress. She may neglect her home, gossip and lounge about all day, put impossible food upon his table, steal his small change, pry into his private papers, hand over his home to the Periplaneta americana, accuse him falsely of preposterous adulteries, affront his friends, and lie about him to the neighbors — and he can do nothing. She may compromise his honour by indecent dressing, write letters to moving-picture actors, and expose him to ridicule by going into politics — and he is helpless.

Let him undertake the slightest rebellion, over and beyond mere rhetorical protest, and the whole force of the state comes down upon him. If he corrects her with the bastinado or locks her up, he is good for six months in jail. If he cuts off her revenues, he is incarcerated until he makes them good. And if he seeks surcease in flight, taking the children with him, he is pursued by the gendarmerie, brought back to his duties, and depicted in the public press as a scoundrelly kidnapper, fit only for the knout. In brief, she is under no legal necessity whatsoever to carry out her part of the compact at the altar of God, whereas he faces instant disgrace and punishment for the slightest failure to observe its last letter. For a few grave crimes of commission, true enough, she may be proceeded against. Open adultery is a recreation that is denied to her. She cannot poison her husband. She must not assault him with edged tools, or leave him altogether, or strip off her few remaining garments and go naked. But for the vastly more various and numerous crimes of omission — and in sum they are more exasperating and intolerable than even overt felony — she cannot be brought to book at all.

The scene I depict is American, but it will soon extend its horrors to all Protestant countries. The newly-enfrancished women of every one of them cherish long programs of what they call social improvement, and practically the whole of that improvement is based upon devices for augmenting their own relative autonomy and power. The English wife of tradition, so thoroughly a femme covert, is being displaced by a gadabout, truculent, irresponsible creature, full of strange new ideas about her rights, and strongly disinclined to submit to her husband's authority, or to devote herself honestly to the upkeep of his house, or to bear him a biological sufficiency of heirs. And the German Hausfrau, once so innocently consecrated to Kirche, Kuche and Kinder, is going the same way.

Controversy Tops 'L' Final

By RON JAYNES

Controversy, similar to that of the 1969 class M state basketball tournament finals, which involved the Oran Eagles and a decision call by an official, highlighted Friday's class L regional tournament final at the fieldhouse where the Sikeston Bulldogs edged the Dexter Bearcats, 64-63, in overtime to move into the state tournament next week.

The Sikeston incident, which was unfortunate for all concerned, occurred in the final seconds or after time had elapsed in overtime when a foul was called. The question was raised whether the foul had been called before the final buzzer sounded or whether the foul occurred after the buzzer had sounded. If it had occurred before time had run out, a Dexter play would have had a chance to tie and send the team ahead, but the ruling made by the official timer was that time had elapsed and the foul was not recorded.

In 1969 when the Oran Eagles were competing for the class M state title against Dixon, an official dampened the OHS hopes by calling a seldom used, but seldom abused time rule on a free throw, which took the Eagles Red Johnson from the line after he put his team within one point of tying the Bulldogs.

Friday's incident, similar only in the way it decided the outcome of the game, as the floor referees had only the word of the official timer to go by.

The near capacity crowd, screaming with every move as Dexter took the ball out of bounds with six seconds left on the clock in the overtime, either drowned out the final buzzer or it never went off.

That is a question that will long be remembered by the many DHS fans, who attended the battle, not to mention the players and coaches. It's unfortunate that the game wasn't a run-away in either teams favor, that would have possibly kept down the hard feelings.

The game officials, Carl Townsend and Bob Johnson, can't be blamed for the incident. They were like many, including this writer, who didn't hear a buzzer or any other signal that would have made the decision easier.

For the outcome of a game to lie in one man's hands is a rule that must be changed before other incidents like Friday night's occur.

We're not saying he was right or wrong. But do say that in such a situation a two-minute extension of overtime would be the most feasible and maybe cut down on some of the tension.

Well, it's history now, the Sikeston Bulldogs are going into Monday's state tournament at Cape Girardeau.

What Friday's incident will do to any future playing of the regional at Sikeston is a big question, one that concerns many.

It seems that controversy almost always revolves around the best, that couldn't be more true as is the case of Townsend, who is considered to be the top official in the state.

He was one of the two officials, who were involved in officiating at the Dixon—Oran game...No, he wasn't the one who made the big call, as was the case at the fieldhouse Friday night.

Officials, timers and scorers are selected by the tournament committee, which is composed of representatives of three of the schools involved.

SHS Bulldogs No. 1

By GEORGE SMITH

Included in the National Federation of State high school Athletic Association rule book on basketball is a section that may interest sports fans...."Expiration of playing time in each quarter, half or extra period shall be indicated by the timer's signal. This signal terminates player activity. If the timer's signal fails to sound, or is not heard, the timers shall go on the court or use other means to notify the referee immediately. If, in the meantime, a goal has been made or a foul has occurred, the referee shall consult the timers. If the timers agree that time expired before the ball was in flight, the goal shall not count. If they agree that the period ended before the foul occured, the foul shall be disregarded unless it was unsportsmanlike. If timers disagree, the goal shall count or the fould shall be penalized unless the referee has knowledge which alters such ruling."

The rule book backs up the decision of the referees and the timer made in the final game of the regional class L basketball tournament in the Field House Friday night. The controversy arose in the overtime as a foul was called on Sikeston's Undrea West after apparently the final gun had sounded and the referees had been unable to hear the buzzer above the roar of the crowd.

Playing in their third regional championship game in the past three years the Sikeston Bulldogs won the right to go to State with a 64 to 63 overtime victory over the Dexter Bearcats. Several players vied for the limelight.

Pope Hunt was the big stick. The 6-4 sophomore, tore eight rebounds from the boards while hitting 100 per cent from the field and from the free throw line. This big sophomore hit two for two from the field and three for three from the charity line.

In the waning seconds of the regulation game Big Pope Hunt shot a beautiful hook shot to tie the game, 61 to 61, and send the Sikestonians into overtime with added momentum.

"Pope deserves credit for the extra spirit he gave our boys out there tonight" says Coach N.P. McDaniel.

Lee King and West did not go unheralded. The 6-1 senior and 6-0 junior combined for 40 points and key steals in the last minutes of the regulation game and overtime period.

King netted 23 and West added 17. In the overtime West was the only Bulldog to find the range. The sharp shooting guard-forward hit a field goal and a free throw to lead the Dogs into the victory circle.

Dexter was not without its stars. Danny Summers, Terry Demaree and Randy Northington gave the Dogs fits.

Demaree collected eight points in the fourth quarter and two more points in the overtime before the Dogs could stop the rugged senior.

Summers also added to the Bearcat fourth quarter come from behind as he netted seven points in that period, scoring 12 on the evening.

Northington, the big work horse for Coach Jim Hall, battled the Sikeston cagers on the boards throughout the encounter but his efforts were for naught.

The championship game was tense and exciting. Both squads battled on an even basis for the first half of play with neither squad able to build up a substantial lead. The half score was 28 to 28.

The second half was a bit more Sikeston. The Bulldogs began to find the range and before the Bearcats could cool off the hot shooting Dogs, they were down by seven points, 49 to 42.

The Bearcats had their work cut out for them in the fourth quarter. They had to check the sharp shooters of the Dogs while compiling a few points of their own. Behind the out-court accuracy of Demaree and the under the board heroics of Summers the Dexter quintet accomplished its task and took the lead with 2:47 left.

The last two minutes were the scene of cool ball handling by the Bearcats. They attempted to stall for the victory. The Bearcat strategy failed as the Dogs' Pope Hunt scored on a beautiful hook shot with 0:58 showing on the clock to tie the game, 61 to 61. That's the way the regulation game ended.

In the overtime Dexter was the first to score. Demaree hit a jumper with 2:40 showing on the clock to give Dexter the lead, 63 to 61. Sikeston's West was fouled and brought the Dogs within one point, 63 to 62, as he connected on his charity shot. With 0:34 second showing on the clock and Sikeston trailing 63 to 62, Lee King was fouled as Francis Guethle collected his fifth foul while attempting to steal the ball. King missed his first of a possible one and one.

As Dexter passed the ball downcourt West charged out of nowhere to steal the ball and drive in for the layup putting Sikeston into the lead with 0:06 left on the clock.

Dexter failed to score as the Sikeston Bulldogs claimed first place in the class L regional at the fieldhouse admist the yells of "We're Number One" and "Sikeston Goes To State".

Monday night the Dogs journey to Cape Girardeau and Houck Field House to battle Desoto in first round action of the class L state tournament, Sikeston has gone to State three consecutive years but has fallen three times to win a championship. Sikeston enters the tournament this year with a record of playing superb ball in its last six outings.

In advancing to state play and the elite 16 teams left in the state, Sikeston shot 50 per cent from the field and 54.5 per cent from the charity line. The rebounding edge also went to the Sikeston cagers as the Dogs pulled down 38 to the Cat's 28.

Big Night For Mizzou

Kansas CITY (AP) — The Missouri Tigers can assure themselves of at least a tie for second place in the Big Eight Conference basketball race tonight by beating Kansas State at Manhattan.

The Bengals, with their best record in 50 years, planned to spend the afternoon watching the televised game in which Kansas sought to clinch first place in a game with Oklahoma at Lawrence.

If Kansas, 11-0, beats the Sooners, 8-4, Missouri will nail down undisputed possession of the runner-up spot with a triumph over the wildcats and will be listening for a bid to the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

Missouri is 9-3 in the conference and 17-7 over-all. If Oklahoma should upset Kansas and Missouri beats Kansas State, the title clinching for the Jayhawks would have to wait until next week.

Kansas State is 5-8 and closes out its season against the Tigers.

After the Oklahoma-Kansas contest, Nebraska, 7-5, faced slumping Colorado, 4-7, at Lincoln in the second half of the television doubleheader.

Oklahoma State climbed out of the cellar Friday night by downing Iowa State at Stillwater 69-63. Oklahoma State's victory made the Cowboy record 2-10 and dropped the Cyclones, 2-11, into the basement.

The Cowboys built a 39-19 lead in the first half. The Cyclones never got closer than six points thereafter despite Gene Mack's 18 points in the second half. Mack led all pointmakers with 24. Scott Alford was high for Oklahoma State with 16.

Kansas City Manual and Fredericktown will battle for the state Class M high school basketball title at Columbia tonight, while Wright City faces Stanberry in the Class S finals at Rolla.

Fredericktown upset defending champion Hermann 41-40 in Friday night's semifinals and Manual ran over Mount Vernon 82-51.

Wright City defeated Morrisville 78-65 and Stanberry took a 70-59 decision over Cairo.

Fredericktown rode to victory in the 19-point shooting of Rodney Denman. He offset a third period rally by Hermann and kept the Blackcats on top.

Manual hit nearly 75 per cent of its field shots against Mount Vernon. Felix Jerman set the pace with 10 goals in 11 shots and 26 points, and Dan Pauley added 23. Ron Wynne led Mount Vernon with 19.

Manual takes a 23-2 record into the finals; Fredericktown is 26.3 Hermann, in its fourth straight year in the semifinals, went out at 30-2 . Wright City is again 28-4 and Stanberry 25-5 in the Class S finals.

Joe Bradshaw hit 27 points and Gordan Ring 18 for Wright City which ran up a 22-point lead in the third quarter against Morrisville.

Grapefruit League Action Begins

The Houston Astros have come up with a rookie shortstop, Roger Metzger, who Manager Harry Walker thinks may make the Astros a contender in the National League this season.

Never mind that Metzger was caught rounding first base too wide for an out that snuffed out a ninth inning rally as the Boston Red Sox beat the Astros 4-3 Friday in the opening of the major league exhibition baseball season.

"That's something we'll work on," Walker said. "The kid is a good runner, he's intelligent and a hard worker. We'll tell him what he did wrong and he won't make that mistake again. He made some plays in the field and got a hit in the ninth when we needed to keep things going."

In other opening games of the so-called Grapefruit League in Florida, the New York Yankees beat Washington 6-1, Atlanta downed Montreal 4-2 and Pittsburgh shaded the Chicago White Sox 2-1.

In the Cactus League in Arizona. Oakland blanked San Diego 2-0, San Francisco walloped the Chicago Cubs 9-4 and Milwaukee defeated the Tokyo Lotte Orions 6-4.

Stan Bahnsen, Bill Burbach and Ron Klimkowski combined for a two-hitter in pitching the Yankees over the Senators at Pompano Beach. Four singles by Ralph Garr and a two-run triple by Sonny Jackson helped the Braves overcome the Expos at West Palm Beach. The Pirates got only three hits, but made the most of them in shading the White Sox at Sarasota.

Vida Blue, Chris Floethe and Arthur Boyd combined for a three-hitter as the A's shut out the Padres. Homers by Ted Kubiak, Bill Voss, Danny Walton and Dave May paced the Brewers over the Orions at Tempe.

The Giants banged out 18 hits in bombarding the Cubs at Scottsdale.

March...

. . . comes in like a lion.

Horoscopes For Week

March 8 - March 14

PISCES: Many unusual people may help you during this seven -day period. Look for particular guidance from Sagittarius, possibly Virgo and Leos. Luck seeks you out wherever you hide. The only cautionary advice I might give you -- don't move ahead too fast and leave behind those problems concerned with your success. You most usually give more than you take. Use this creed of yours now. Take heed.

ARIES: Your cycle is not especially high, but a great deal of "fence -mending'. can be accomplished in areas causing pressure. Some new facts, important may come to light before the end of the week. I hope you can see your way more clearly ; that minor irritants appear no longer troublesome. You will do well to cooperate with others at this point, assuming that you are in agreement with the policies put forth by those in authority. If not, don't be afraid to work overtime, if you need be, to get your points across.

TAURUS: Social activity should be high during the middle of the week; you find that your mate and you, or one close to you, may have many invitations of a public nature that may affect your standing in neighborhood affairs. Domestic situations may become basic during the latter part of the week, and should be thrashed out with the parties involved. A mysteriously conveyed message by a Scorpio or Cancer, could turn out to be a misunderstanding and need straightening out. In short, this seems to be a period when you are asked to be a mediator -- a necessary role that you may not particularly relish.

GEMINI: You can reach your potential during this seven -day week by keeping a careful watch on finances and book work; and be keeping those closest to you performing their chores peaceably. If problems come to light that may have been inadvertently caused by you, cheerfully go about rectifying your mistakes. The past weeks of dull routine, day by day, may seem unrewarding but they provide the necessary respite between periods of tremendous activity and make the whole pattern emerge clearer.

CANCER: You are going to be occupied by so many events that I can only say "good luck." Looking over some of the comparatively quiet periods in the last two months, the checkerboard becomes filled with pieces -- each important, each contributing to the game and how it is played. I have the feeling that later you will be engaged in a game of wits -- the outcome can only be the sum total of what you learned as a human being, and may reveal whole areas of your thinking that you never knew existed.

LEO: Your considerable background of information helps you to inform, as others seek the benefits of your knowledge. You may meet a number of interesting people with outlooks far different from your own at a large gathering. If an executive, you may be asked to speak at one of these events, to relate experiences, give important clues for success. No matter what your age, sex, occupation, this week calls for above -average participation in important events dealing with society at large.

VIRGO: You may feel a need to return to practicality on the 10th, 11th, and 12th. Your advice, help will probably be asked, and you can probably guide those favor -seekers in the direction you want them to head. From a personal view, you might explain the importance of self- discipline and the forming of good work habits. The point is not to be over - critical and talk down; be specific in your recommendations.

LIBRA: You have the power to further the kind of image you have been building. You are interested because you show interest in others; you can reach your potential because you are sincere; you do not need to fake emotions. This should prove whether you have built your ambitions on a solid foundation; if you haven't, any pretense will show through your carefully built -up facade.

SCORPIO: During this period, health may be stressed. If you are a parent, be sure children are physically well as they are sent back and forth to school; it is possible that eyes should be checked for glasses. If you have been putting off purchasing spring clothing, check bargains. A short shopping excursion with a Leo may be just what you need.

SAGITTARIUS: The most significant day is apt to be the 13th of this week when the moon moves into the section of your chart dealing with education, long journeys, schools, institutions. Communication that have been delayed may come to light; red tape may be cut; mislaid reports, letters, may turn up in unlikely places. You communicate but your thoughts may be difficult to translate into ordinary conversation.

CAPRICORN: It is time to make plans for the summer. Changes in the way of life of friends and family members may cause you unwelcome anxiety. You have the desire to speed issues, yet are held back by events you may not fully comprehend. It seems to be a murky film over transactions dealing with others, but a vague glimmer of a solution is ahead.

AQUARIUS: Changes that may have come about during the last two months regarding the shaping of your life, have made a deepening impression on you. These events give a glimmer of what the rest of the year holds. Recently you have been in a quandary about many of the facets that make up you life.

'Mame' Cast As Spring Production

Tryouts for "Mame," the third production of the Sikeston's Little Theatre group for the season, are set for Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the middle school music room.

Two local radio announcers are directors - Jim Wenneker will direct the speaking parts, and Ken White will lead the music selections.

"Mame" will be the first musical to include a stage band as part of the production, but a singing chorus and dancing chorus will also be needed.

One male juvenile lead is required, and other speaking parts are designed for adults.

Each year Little Theatre group stages a musical production for its last event of the year. "Sound of Music,"

Little Theatre group closed its second performance of the season last week with "The Desperate Hours." It concerned three escaped convicts who took refuge in ahome of a suburban family and how the family coped with the situation.

"Finian's Rainbow," "Show Boat," "Oklahoma," and "South Pacfic," are some of the productions presented in past years.

Opening dates for "Mame" will be April 29, 30, and May 1.

The directors urge persons who are interested to try out for the various speaking parts and musical selections.

They also commented that any person who is interested in construction of the sets, the lighting and the making of the costumes should attend the tryouts Sunday afternoon.

Home Management by Ruby

Hello! Since you heard from me last, we in home management have really kept busy. Test number two was given. Guess what? The boys are slowly coming up in the class!

Last week we learned how to store the spaghetti-strap formals! (You should hang it by the straps on a notched hanger!)

Floor plans were also made. Many were so enthusiastic--they went home and re-did their bedrooms. In order to make a floor plan, you must draw your room on a piece of graph paper. For furniture, you cut out pieces of paper. (However, I find the furniture section of Ward's catalogue offers much more of a variety.)

We are also learning how to arrange an efficient closet. Here are a few hints--store skirts and blouses together; because of the new dress lengths, get a layered dress hanger to keep the midis and maxis off the floor.

In order to clean a velvet formal, it is best to send it to the cleaners. However, if you are a brave person, here is how to take care of it at home. Lay the formal on a clean dry surface; take the steam iron and fill it with distilled water.

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — The fastest passenger train in the regular service of the West German federal railways is the Porta Westfalica, which travels the 179-mile distance between Cologne and Hannover in 2 hours, 29 minutes for an average speed of 72 mph. It makes five stops on the run.

Student Body Announces Candidates

Five boys will be vying for student body offices in Sikeston high school Tuesday, March 30.

Candidates for student body president are Kenny Barkett, Hunter Moore, and John Sargent.

When interviewed, Kenny revealed his purpose in running for student body president when he remarked, "The students need a greater voice in the student government; this is one of the issues I would like to work on."

Kenny is an active member of Honor Society and the Bleacher Bums. He participates in school football and plays basketball with a church league.

Hunter decided his purpose of campaigning for student body president was the fact that he believes Sikeston high has the potential to accomplish many services for the school and needs a leader to put this potential to work for the coming year.

Hunter voiced the idea that student council is a good basis for the student voice in government and should set the example for the school; he said that it was up to the president and vice - president to set the example for the student council.

Hunter is a member of Honor Society, Top 10, Spanish Club, and he enjoys participating in tennis on the school's team.

Junior photographer John Sargent expressed his purpose in running for president as helping the student council remain doing a fine job. John's accomplishments include holding the position of president of the junior class, being an active member of Biology Club, and belonging to the Bleacher Bums.

Juniors running for student body vice - president are Jim Marshall and Robert Reynolds.

Jim has been a member of student council for three years and thinks this qualifies him to do a good job if elected. He feels being on the inside of student council gives him an insight on its problems and strong points.

Jim is a member of Honor Band, 8:30 band, and Spanish Club.

Robert Reynolds is running for student body vice - president because he feels he can do something constructive for the student body. One point he feels strongly on is school spirit.

Nothing is more common than a fool with a strong memory. ...C.C. Colton

FEDERAL FUNDS

CHICAGO (AP) — Federal highway funds for 1971 total $21.2 billion for improvements to federal, state and local highway systems.

Total receipts for 1971 are expected to be $1.6 billion more than the $21.6 billion total receipts in 1970, according to a report compiled by the Commerce Clearing House, a tax authority.

Highway disbursements will amount to $20.4 billion, plus $1.2 billion for retirement of bonds in 1971.

Capital outlays, including expenditures for right-of-way, engineering and construction, will amount to $12.2 billion or 60 per cent of total current disbursements. The 1971 outlays will be more than 9 per cent higher than in 1970.

Maintenance is expected to cost $4.8 billion or 24 per cent of the total. This is 6 per cent higher than in 1970.

Wide receiver Paul Flatley captains the Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.

Musicians Make Debut For Public

Sikeston high school late division (8:30) band, directed by Ron Williams, will present its annual winter concert Tuesday evening in the Sikeston high school cafetorium.

Formal concert will begin at 7:30 with the traditional procession.

Band is composed of approximately 82 members, providing complete instrumentation for all numbers.

Seniors will be recognized by Mr. Williams, a tradition that has been carried on for many years.

Junior Jane Gray will play a piano solo, "Mountain Concerto," with band accompaniment. Jane, having played solos since the seventh grade, is an accomplished pianist.

"Fairest of the Fair" by John Philip Sousa will begin the program followed by "Fugue No. IV," by Johann Sebastian Bach.

An unusual piece will be the next selection. "Symphonic Invention" by Lloyd Conley features the brass section in the beginning, but the melody gradually flows to the woodwinds in many intricate patterns.

On the lighter side will be such favorite selections as "Pageant" by Vincent Persichetti, "Scenes from 'The Louvre' " by Norman Dello Joio, and "Czech Suite" by Paul W. Whear.

Band members cordially invite the public to attend and no admission will be charged. "We've worked hard, and it will be great!" remarked Mr. Williams.

ITED Test Date Set

Iowa Test of Educational Development will be administered on Thursday and Friday, March 18 and 19. This exam is given during the last quarter of each school year to all high school students. This is the 14th year for the test to be given in Sikeston high school.

Chester Masterson, senior counselor, said that the test has been revised this year. Tests will start at the regular school hours, but the exam has been shortened so that dismissal should be from one to two hours earlier than previous years.

Seniors and juniors will take the test Thursday and be dismissed from school on Friday for a long week end. Freshmen and sophomores will have a holiday on Thursday and will return to school for the test the following day.

Rosenquist Instructs Beneficial SHS Course

Robert Rosenquist, design drafting instructor, initiates each new group of students with an informative lecture on drafting, its varied purposes and benefits.

Mr. Rosenquist began his talk by asking,"What kind of drawing does drafting bring to mind?"

Most of the new students mentioned architectural work. In fact, they said that probably 85 per cent of design drafting is done in this area.

"Actually," Mr. Rosenquist said, "a maximum of only 20 per cent of the design drafters work in the architectural field. Most people have the mistaken impression that almost all drafting is done in the planning and designing of buildings."

To emphasize other areas of drafting and compare the time involved to architectural plans, Mr. Rosenquist said, "A set of house plans, with two to four bedrooms, might take 40 hours of work -- just one week. On the other hand just the body of a carburetor could take three weeks to design and draft."

"Multiply this by all the parts within a car and consider the amount of time a draftsman would have to work to produce all the components of an automobile."

"Architecture is a branch of drafting, but consider various articles in the home. Household appliances, such as washing machines, toasters, refrigerators, vacuums, are all drafted. Televisions, radios, stereos, and clocks; furniture, fixtures, and cabinets all have to be designed and drafted."

Mr. Rosenquist gave additional information for aspiring architects, "A minimum of six years of college is required with an additional three-year apprenticeship. After working under a registered architect, the drafter must take a state examination. This test usually takes four -14-hour days."

"Mechanical design is another form of drafting. This can include anything from a new style of dinnerware forks to the propelling mechanism in a jet aircraft. Mechanical design can be done for composite parts of a specific article in Spokane, Washington; Homestead, Florida; and Japan. These parts must be specifically made, so they can be perfectly assembled."

"A mechanical designer, as all other draftsmen, must be responsible for directions placed on the whiteprints. Most draftsmen no longer use a blueprint," Mr. Rosenquist explained, "they use a white paper with blue lines. All instructions for heat treatment, materials, and processing are specified on the print by the draftsman."

"Electro -mechanical drafting can be as complicated as a computer used in the space program to a pair of contact points. A car horn works on the principle of contact points, and is an example of the simplest form of electro - mechanical drafting."

"Tool design is an open field. Considering all the articles that are drafted is a minor job, when you think of the tools that are used to draft these objects. As a simple example of this take a mold. In plastic model car kits, parts come on a sprue tree with runners connecting individual parts. This seemingly insignificant job is done by a draftsman."

"Technical illustrators are also draftsmen. These people show how things are done. Their work is displayed in manuals, and directions for most equipment and appliances. A seven -man sled , used in practice football, includes a technical illustration showing how to assemble, disassemble, and replace parts. These illustrations are also used to train personnel to service appliances."

"Purpose of design drafting is to train the students to obtain a good entry level draftsman job."

"Any student entering an engineering field should at least take one course in design drafting," Mr. Rosenquist said. "Even a business administration major should take the course for general knowledge. For instance if a person is a buyer of parts or a purchasing agent, he should have some knowledge of identification and use of the parts he must purchase. This can be learned in drafting."

"Last year there were 17,000 new job openings in design drafting. In the next 10 years there will be 42 per cent more opportunities."

"Five to 10 per cent of draftsmen are women." Mr. Rosenquist added. "One woman works for the FAA designing approaching and landing strips for airports throughout the United States. Her salary is $15-18,000 annually, with travel expenses paid."

"Design drafting is a course which most students know little about, and many students should take." Mr. Rosenquist concluded, "We hope to have an open house soon so that students can visit the department during free periods or lunch. With this open house, we hope there will be an increased interest in the field of design drafting."

Peace Dividend Will Disappoint

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The peace movement's scenario has it this way: We end our involvement in Vietnam, bring the boys home and start spending all that bomb and bullet money on schools, hospitals, housing and ending pollution. Pretty soon we are living happily ever after, off again on the road to the Great Society.

Realistic?

Realistic, but only to a point, a point somewhere this side of the millenium. That is the conclusion of a study by Michael E. Levy, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, an economic research organization.

In a report on "The Vietnam Peace Dividend," Levy contends that ending the war will bolster federal funds available for domestic civilian use by, at most, $16 billion a year (in fiscal 1969 dollars). That's not exactly a pittance, but it's not enough to remake a nation of 200 million people whose federal government has a yearly budget of $200 billion.

"The people who see the end of the war as the grand solution are harboring hopes that will, I'm afraid, turn out to be excessive," Levy said. "Additional amounts of money are becoming available, but people who expect ending the war to solve all our problems will be disappointed."

Troop withdrawals have already freed part of the $16 billion dividend.

"There is a general unawareness that in a quiet way we have already absorbed part of the dividend," Levy explained. "The tax reform, for instance—it was essentially a tax cut—would probably not have been possible if our commitment in Vietnam had been continued at its previous levels."

Economists disagree about the cost of the war—because of inflation and the difficulty of determining what part of the Defense Department's budget (now nearly $80 billion a year) goes into fighting in Vietnam. Levy has blended several estimates, shaken them well and produced a result that puts the cost of the war in the $20-24 billion range for the year that ended June 30, 1969, the 12 months of our peak involvement.

When the war ends, however, it will not mean all that $20-24 billion has become available for civilian use.

In the classical economists' allegory, nations agonize over relative production decisions concerning guns and butter—military and civilian goods. Levy points out that when wars end, not all the guns are melted down into butter; some of them are melted down into new kinds of guns.

(A report by the federal government's General Accounting Office says the Pentagon has plans for 130 weapons projects it would like to start once the war ends. They would cost about $140 billion.)

This is what Levy calls "the ratchet effect," a historial tendency for this country to keep postwar defense spending higher than prewar levels. Since U.S. pre-Vietnam defense spending was higher than levels before this country's other wars, the post-Vietnam ratchet effect will probably be lower, Levy contends, but will still gobble up at least a fifth of the peace dividend.

Another eighth of the dividend will be tied up indefinitely in U.S. commitments to support the Saigon government, Levy adds.

That leaves the $13-16 billion his report indicates will become available for civilian use.

Levy says that those industries most likely to benefit from the peace dividend will be those associated with health and welfare services, food, consumer goods and construction.

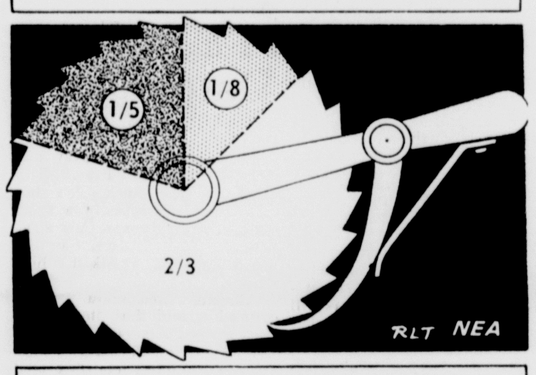
Other industries — notably aircraft and ordnance makers, electrical equipment manufacturers and producers of some metals—will suffer, at least until they make the transition to peacetime production.

Assistant Defense Secretary David Packard has predicted that 1.7 million defense jobs will be abolished this year, partly because of cuts in the armed forces, and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has submitted a bill that would provide $450 million to help industry make the guns-to-butter change-over.

Political decisions will ultimately decide what use the government will make of peace dividend money, Levy admits.

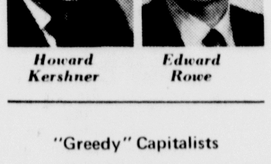
"An administration always reveals its priorities, and I've tried to take into account the priorities of the Nixon administration in making the report," he said.

THE RATCHET EFFECT



At least one-fifth of the funds released by a Vietnam settlement is likely to go back into defense spending as a result of the ratchet effect, the natural increase of postwar over prewar preparedness costs. Another eighth will be absorbed by continuing pacification and reconstruction obligations in Vietnam. At most, two-thirds of the post-Vietnam peace dividend will be available for domestic civilian use.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY



Howard Kershner — Edward Rowe

"Greedy" Capitalists

The other day a well-educated fellow raised an eyebrow about the concept of profit. "Too many businessmen are grasping and greedy, you see. They have dollar signs in their eyes. They go after profit for the sake of profit. Nothing else."

My reply to this well meaning gentleman went something like this: Under conditions of economic freedom and true competition, a man in business has a moral obligation to make a profit. Only when he does so are employees and managers given secure, income-producing opportunities which make it possible for them to support their families, their churches, their favorite charities and worthy causes.

Assuming that business is conducted within the framework of ethical and moral principles, and within the bounds of legality, it can do nothing but good. If this country had a thousand more millionaires, all of us would enjoy a higher standard of living.

Where there is no profit, research lags, development is retarded, jobs are lost and businesses fail. To paraphrase a Biblical verse, "Where there is no profit, the people perish!"

The miracle of the free economy is evident in the fact that any businessman, regardless of his political, religious or philosophical viewpoint, serves the cause of the consumers and has a part in raising their standard of living to the extent that he operates within the framework of freedom and competition.

Thus it is true that the heads of religious institutions would do well to perpetuate the principles of economic freedom, because even the atheistic businessman unknowingly supports these religious institutions, indirectly at least, by raising the living standards of those who contribute to them.

Profit is a good and wholesome concept; it serves the interests of us all.

Dare-Devil Stunt Fatal to Stella Boy

NEOSHO, Mo. (AP)— The highway patrol said a 16-year-old boy was killed while trying a dare-devil stunt near his home at Stella in southwest Missouri.

The victim was Gary Bailey. Investigators say young Bailey was riding on the hood of a car Tuesday night driven by 17-year-old Kervyn Cook of Fairview, another small town southeast of Neosho. Bailey apparently tried to climb over the top of the car, slipped and fell off

That's The Law

Groping Charlie Has Gripe

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Charley viewed himself as an unresistible Casanova. One night he looked deep into the eyes of his date and groped for words But, where he groped, he didn't find the words, just trouble. Hi date had him arrested on charges of having taken indecent liberties with her.

Vehemently denying the charge, Charley really hit the ceiling however, when he found himself standing trial in a national guard armory.

"Somebody's trying to make a federal case out of a little love making," he protested. "If I'm going to stand trial, I want to stand trial in a courtroom. In an armory, with its atmosphere of militancy and hostility, no decent accused criminal stands a chance."

"Sorry," was the answer, "but the local courthouse is falling apart and isn't safe. Even the termites are getting out. Consequently, the armory will have to do,"

And, it did do, but not too good for Charley. Convicted, he immediately appealed for a new trial on the grounds that his trial was not conducted "in open court" as required by law but in an armory.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE , would you grant groper Charley a new trial?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the use of the temporary facilities for Charley's trial did not prejudice him even if it was conducted in an armory; that the trial was conducted calmly and with decorum, and with all the solemnity warranted by the proceeding. Thus, he was not deprived of any of his rights.

Telephone Rates to Be Increased

MALDEN — Due to unprecedented growth in the number of telephones in the Malden calling area, which includes Gideon and Risco, telephone rates are scheduled to be adjusted April 29, according to Clarence Lierz, Southwestern Bell manager.

"It should be pointed out that telephone rates in Missouri are based uniformly on the number of telephones which customers can call without paying a Long Distance charge," Lierz explained. "Throughout the state, telephone exchanges of similar size have the same rates. Malden telephone service has simply outgrown its present rate group."

The manager said that in 1960 for example, there were approximately 1,540 telephones in the Malden calling area. However, today, telephone users in Malden can call more than 5,050 telephones toll free. This means that callers can reach some 227 per cent more telephones now than they could just 10 years ago.

"The schedule increases in rates amounts to only 25 cents per month for residence customers," Lierz said. "The increase for business customers with individual lines is one dollar per month, for suburban business customers, 40 cents per month, and for rural business customers, 30 cents per month. The rate for semi - public coin service will be raised 90 cents a month."

Lierz said the rate adjustment also will apply to Southwestern Bell customers in Gideon and Risco. He added that all customers involved in the rate adjustment will be notified by letter.

Following are the new monthly rates that are scheduled to become effective on April 29, 1971. Federal, state or city taxes are not included. There will be no change in the rates for business or residence extension telephones.

AFDC Rising at Unprecedented Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's major welfare program is continuing to record unprecedented increases of more than 200,000 recipients and $120 million a month, according to the government's latest statistics.

Figures for November 1970, the latest period available, show an additional 282,000 men, women previous onth in the program of aid to families with dependent children. At this rate the annual increase would be 3.4 million persons.

Based on a per-person cost of $600 plus, the increase would cost all levels of government an additional $2.5 billion.

The annual increase in AFDC rolls has accelerated from one million persons two years ago to two million one year ago.

But November's record jump is deceiving, according to officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. They say it includes a transitory, 70,000 addition of striking General Motors workers in Michigan.

Welfare rolls traditionally increase in winter months when outdoor seasonal work is not available, the officials added.

Nevertheless, the three months preceding November each recorded jumps of more than 200,000 recipients and a record 9.4 million were on family welfare rolls in November with an additional 4.2 million persons receiving assistance to the aged, blind and disabled.

Welfare specialists attribute the continuing increase to three factors: Mounting unemployment, recent court and administrative rulings easing restrictions on relief eligibility and publicity campaigns by poverty lawyers and the National Welfare Rights Organization encouraging poor persons to apply for aid.

Steele Deeds Site For State Prison

STEELE, — Construction of an 8.5 - million -dollar maximum security prison at Steele came a step closer to reality Tuesday as city officials presented the State of Missouri a deed for a 79-acre tract on which to build the prison — plus easement rights for another 139 acres.

When Mayor Ed Aumon handed the deed to Fred T. Wilkinson, direcotr of the Missouri Department of Corrections, it indicated the city finally had cleared a hurdle it stumbled over last summer.

The Federal Aviation Administration, after World War II, gave the City of Steele a 640-acre tract complete with a runway.

The deed stipulated that none of the land could be sold or given away if it eventually was to be used for non -aviation purposes.

That restriction complicated matters for the city, since it was offering to give the State of Missouri about 200 acres on which to build the 300-inmate prison.

The FAA lifted its restriction after the city established an airport fund, "putting a certain amount into the fund," according to an informed source.

Mayor Aumon could not be reached for comment on how much money the city paid into the fund.

It may be several years before the prison, which would employ 75 to 100 persons, becomes a reality. Funds for its construction have not been appropriated by the Missouri legislature.

The money is part of a 250-million- dollar state building program now being pondered by the legislature. If the program is approved, Missourians still will have to give their approval in a statewide bond election.

Once construction is begun, the facility would be completed in about two years.

"WHY CAN'T HE JUST WALK IN HIS SLEEP?"

Williams and Harper Head Committee

In a planning meeting of the Chamber of Commerce for the annual Farmers Recognition dinner, in November, Ken Williams and John F. Harper were made co-chairmen. The meeting was called by Don Bohannon, chamber president.

The two men will supervise the arrangements and contact all organizations. Area service club members with their farm guests will be an addition to the group in attendance last November that numered almost 300.

May 19 will be the date of the next committee meeting when reports will be heard from club organizations.

James Beaird, member of the steering committee, announced that the Chamber will accept nominees for Man of the Year April 29, and urged members to call or write the Chamber office giving their choice, and state his qualifications and accomplishments.

The award is open to anyone who is a resident of Sikeston.

Crash Hurts Driver, Kills Three Cows

HAYTI--A 46-year-old Dyer, Tenn., cattle truck driver received cuts in accident Friday two miles north of Hayti on Highway 55 when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel and ran off the road.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the driver, James Dunagan, was taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital with back cuts.

The accident occurred, the patrol said, when Dunagan apparently fell asleep, ran off the right side of the road and overturned.

He was driving a 1967 International tractor trailer south.

According to Dunagan, there were 32 to 33 head of cattle in the truck. The patrol said only 28 head had been accounted for by 8 a.m. Fri Three of the cows were dead and two were injured severely. Officers said the rest of the herd had been rounded up and were temporarily penned up near the Hayti outskirts.

Portageville Man Heads New Board

MALDEN — The first meeting of the newly formed Bootheel civil defense advisory board was held Wednesday in the office of the Bootheel Regional Palnning Commission.

This is another regional activity that is sponsored by the commission in cooperation with the Disaster Planning and Operations Office, Civil Defense, Jefferson City.

Charles A. Penman, Portageville, was elected chairman of the board.

Walter Clark, emergency shelter planning officer; Carl Carson, Jr., communication and warning officer; and Pearlie Lukehart, training officer, all of Jefferson City, were present.

These men informed the board of activities involved in civil defense planning. Such things as shelter planning in the event of natural disaster, a warning system to get information to areas not normally reached by official radio, training courses available for civil defense, and steps necessary to qualify a town or county for a civil defense program. This latter qualification would make the political subdivision applying eligible for participation in federally financed assistance programs.

The board has gone on record to make every effort to implement a general civil defense preparedness program on a regional basis. This approach recommended by the National Civil Defense office in Washington, D.C.

"The rugs were rolled up and the furniture pushed back then, someone would grab a fiddle and the fun would begin."

Johnson said his dating was limited by his financial situation.

"If we were broke we often had a parlor date, but that was embarassing."

"There was a time when I would have a dollar and a half for a weekend and on that we could buy three gallons of gas for 50 cents so that left you a buck. On Saturday night you could always bump into a friend or two at the Bijou, located where Hale's Jewelry store is today. We could go to the movie on Sunday afternoon have a barbeque and Coke and still have enough money to make it home."

Today's youth, Johnson says, has to be entertained so often and it has to be so exciting and removed from the norm, that money doesn't matter.

"Kids allow themselves to become bored so easily today that it requires something spectacular to hold their interest," he said.

I then decided to reach a little farther into the past and make a comparison with the dating habits of 60 years ago. I was told in no uncertain terms that things just aren't what they used to be.

Two most adoreable young women of yesteryear spoke freely of their past but wished to remain unnamed.

"A big date for us was to take a walk on a Sunday afternoon to Morehouse and if we were lucky we would get there in time to catch the evening train home to Sikeston."

The two agreed that the differences today is that kids are dating younger, marrying younger, and morals are different.

"When we were dating, goodnight kissing and necking was out if you didn't get caught at it," they said.

The women spoke of horse and buggy dates and party games such as fruit basket and spin the plate.

"We had just as much fun then as they do today," they said. "It just took a lot less to entertain us."

I spoke with six dating age, eligible men and the main topic of discussion was the "death of Sikeston", I tried in vain to point out that kids 50 years ago didn't think it was so hot but that didn't matter.

The variety of entertainment areas today includes bowling, miniature golf, movies, night spots, social events and church gatherings, but as one frustrated teen ager said:

"You can only bowl so often and see the same movie so many times."

Times may change and years may slowly pass into decades but young people will always complain that there is nothing to do and nowhere to go and their parents will smile with the wisdom of their years and say: "You think you got it rough, well when I was a kid we didn't have.....

Dating in Sikeston- 'There's Nothing at All to Do'

By MIKE JENSEN

The dating habits of the Southeast Missouri male are dear to my heart, since I pursue the custom of courting.

There are several theories about this custom with each generation to a degree employing similar dating tactics.

The male of the species, in theory the domineering and forceful one, is told he should take it upon himself to gather a prospective mate for the purpose of courting and determine if she is suitable for life by his side. This custom reaches back into eons of history with results effective enough to warrant its continuance.

I, of course, cannot speak for other generations, but as for my own, we often complain that Sikeston, if not all of Southeast Missouri, lacks variety of places to go while on a date.

I don't mean to imply that Sikeston is without areas of late night entertainment. Perish the thought. I simply mean that for a person between the ages of 18 and 24 (and there are 1,409 of us) the quality if not the quantity of potential dating areas is limited.

This problem is universal and by no means recent so I asked elders of the community about their youth and their dating practices.

Had times really changed that much or are we simply crying tears that have been shed for manyyears?

I first questioned Red Kirby on dating in his younger days.

Kirby's mind went back to 1922 when he was a fresh graduate of Sikeston high school.

He recalled that a big date back then was to go to the silent movies at the Malone Theater. The Malone is in the same place today.

"And there was always a dance, but there just weren't too many places to go," he recalled.

Just as the youth of today complain, Kirby said his crowd often was forced to go out of town for entertainment. Charleston was their second favorite stomping grounds.

Most basketball games and dances in Kirby's youth were held upstairs above the old city hall building. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is located there today.

"We were chaperoned pretty heavily at the dances and conducted ourselves okay," Kirby said.

Did they drink on dates?

"You could always manage to get it somewhere," Kirby said. "I guess it's a lot like it is today. Yes, kids drank on dates back then."

Kirby also says he feels that the kids of today are wilder with their dating habits. Money is the cause of it, he adds.

"We could go out on a date back then for a buck," he said. "A movie cost five or ten cents, but they didn't sell Cokes and popcorn like today."

Parents had more control over their children back then Kirby said.

"They would know where you were all the time."

Lt. Col. (Ret.) George T. Johnson is a few years younger than Kirby but his problems were similar in 1929-30.

Johnson lived eight miles from Sikeston in what he described as a "country environment". Transportation and economics were the differences that Johnson cited for dating today.

Key Laotian Town Taken

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese infantrymen under an umbrella of U.s. bombers and gunships captured the key Laotian town of Sepone today and cut the Ho Chi Minh trail network around it, Saigon headquarters announced.

President Nguyen Van Thieu sent a congratulatory message to field units praising them for their victory, headquarters announced.

Lt. Col. Tran Van An, the chief South Vietnamese spokesman in Saigon, called a special news conference to announce what he termed a victory.

"Today on March 6 at 1 p.m.," An said, "Vietnamese armed forces units have attacked and seized Sepone after inflicting heavy losses to the enemy." He said 283 North Vientamese troops were killed in and around Sepone today, many of them by heavy U.S. air strikes. By nightfall, he said, the North Vietnamese troops, elements of the veteran 320th Division withdrew.

"There are no enemy in Sepone now," he said.

Lt. Col. Le Thung Hien told newspapermen at the rear headquarters at Dong Ha in the north that the South Vietnamese around Sepone uncovered major stockpiles of war materiel, including 300 tons of munitions.

Sepone is the hub in a network of roads on the Ho Chi Minh trail and was considered a major North Vietnamese transshipment point, although U.S. planes long since pounded it into rubble. "We are in complete control," An said.

He claimed 536 North Vietnamese troops have been killed in two days of heavy fighting in and around Sepone, including 253 outside the town Friday.

South Vietnamese casualties were light he said, adding: "I don't have the numbers right now."

An said 13 of the enemy were captured.

"We destroyed and seized 52 machine guns, two 37 mm antiaircraft guns, five mortars, 17 B40 rocket-propelled grenade launchers, 170 individual weapons, 2,000 Chinese-made gas masks, five trucks, 300 tons of ammunition and 1,000 tons of food and rice," An continued.

"This victory has been reported by Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the 1st Corps commander, to President Thieu and to Gen. Cao Van Vien, chairman of the joint general staff. The president has requested Gen. Lam to transmit to all units participating in this victory his congratulations and compliments.

Sepone was a major objective of the 27-day-old drive into Laos. It lies along Highway 9 intersecting the Ho Chi Minh trail at a point 25 air miles west of the Vietnamese border.

On the Vietnam side of the border, 19 of the enemy's rockets crashed into the allies' forward base at Khe Sanh and sources said two South Vietnamese were killed and 10 wounded. The U.S. Command said it had no reports of American casualties and damage was light.

Associated Press correspondent J.T. Wolkerstorfer reported from the northern front that the area struck by the rockets is congested by several infantry units and a major communications system.

The command disclosed that five more American helicopters and a fighter-bomber were shot down and destroyed supporting the Laos operation, and seven airmen were listed as missing. The losses brought to 52 the number of helicopters acknowledged by the command as downed, but sources said twice that number have been brought down. The command does not report as lost helicopters it retrieves from Laos. Three fighter-bombers also have been lost.

Other helicopters braved the heavy antiaircraft fire to ferry 1,000 South Vietnamese reinforcements to join 1,000 already near Sepone. Field reports said the reinforcements moved to the high ground north of the enemy transshipment point.

The magniturde of the U.S. air support of the operation was underscored in a U.S. communique that reported more than 2,400 helicopter missions into Laos Friday, double the number flown in any other day during the 27-day campaign.

James Morris

Morris Seventh To File

James Vernon Morris of 407 North Ingram has become the seventh candidate to file for the one-year expired term on the city council.

Morris joins Mrs. Anita Hope, Mrs. Nadean Dickerson, Glenn W. Milligan, William "Webb" Edwards, Kenneth Bridger, and Robert Jenkins as candidates for the post.

Morris was born in Sikeston and graduated from the public school system. He is the shop foreman at Sonny Presley's Chevrolet, where he has been employed 20 years.

The main problem facing the city, according to Morris, are the lack of modern equipment for the fire department and the clean-up needed on streets, roads and right-of-way.

Morris was instrumental in the formation of the volunteer rescue unit and is secretary of the volunteer firemen.

"I think a working man needs to be on the council to realize some things that need to be done," he said.

This is the first time Morris has entered politics and he said he did that at the urging of friends and business acquaintances.

Morris has three daughters, Verna, Dianna Sue, and Kimberly, all attending the public schools.

Another area that Morris points out needs improvement practices in purchasing city equipment.

A primary will be March 23 to reduce the seven candidates to the two top vote getters. Those two will then oppose each other in the April 6 general election.

The candidates are seeking the seat vacated by councilman Sam Harbin. Harbin announced his resignation to allow more time for his new position as superintendent of schools.

No Word of Airmen As Deadline Passes

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Ambassador William Handley appealed Friday night for the safe return of four kidnaped American servicemen held for $400,000 ransom. But the deadline for payment set by their kidnapers passed this morning with no word about their fate.

"It is my fervent hope that those who are holding the four airmen have heard my appeal and will release them soon and safely." Handley said in a statement this morning. He said the Turkish Foreign Ministry arranged the broadcast over the state radio.

The kidnapers, leftists called, the Turkish People's Liberation Army, demanded payment by 6 a.m. today—11 p.m. Friday EST—and said they would shoot the Americans if the money was not forthcoming.

The Turkish government refused to bow to the demand and after a meeting of the cabinet Friday night Labor Minister Seyfi Oxturk said, "You don't bargain with bandits."

The only official conciliatory gesture was the radio report of Handley's appeal.

President Nixon told a Washington news conference Thursday that the administration would not apply pressure on the Turkish government to negotiate with terrorists.

A mammoth search for the kidnapers by police and Turkish troops triggered a gun battle between students and troops Friday in which a student and a soldier were killed and more than a dozen persons wounded.

Troops tried to enter a dormitory of the Middle East Technical University and were met by a fussilade of shots and dynamite sticks from rooftops and windows. About 2,000 students were rounded up for questioning.

The four U.S. Air Force radar technicians were seized Thurday as they went from a radar station to their billet; in Ankara. All of them—S.Sgt. Jimmie J. Sexton of San Angelo, Tex.; and Airmen 1.C. Richard Caraszi of Stamford, Conn.; Larry J. Heavner of Denver; and James M. Gholson of Alexandria. Va.—were in civilian clothes and unarmed.

Barbara Sexton pleaded in a statement issued through a neighbor for her husband's release. Mrs. Sexton, who is five months pregnant and has a 13month-old son, is the only dependent of the four kidnaped Americans in Ankara.

The kidnapers' last statement, delivered with the letters, said that if the Turkish government did not broadcast acceptance of their demands "we will wait resolutely for the deadline."

Rampant student unrest, political disturbances and antiAmerican acts have led to tension for the past several months in Turkey.

Thant Wants Israel to Pull Back

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant wants Israel to "give a commitment to withdraw its troops from occupied United Arab Republic territory" to comply with proposals made by Middle East peace mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

Thant also praised Egypt Friday for a "positive reply" to peace moves by the Swedish diplomat and appealed to Israel and Egypt to maintain the Suez Canal cease-fire that is due to expire Sunday.

In a report to the U.N. Security Council on the progress of Jarring's indirect talks with Israel, Egypt and Jordan, Thant said there were "considerable elements of promise," but expressed concern that Jarring's proposals did not break the deadlock between the Israelis and their Arab neighbors.

Jarring proposed on Feb. 8 that Israel drop back to lines that existed between Egypt and British-mandated Palestine before Israel became an independent state in 1948. This would mean Israel would give up the Sinai Peninsula, occupied during the six-day 1967 war.

Jarring also asked Egypt for a commitment to a formal peace agreement with Israel, to which Thant said Egypt gave a "positive reply."

Of immediate concern, Thant said, is the expiration of the cease-fire. He said, "I once more appeal to the parties to withhold fire, to exercise military restraint and to maintain the quiet which has prevailed in the area since August 1970."

Sources said the United States insisted in a meeting of the Big Four U.N. delegates Friday that their communique include a request that the truce be extended, but the Soviet delegate objected. As a result, the meeting broke up without a communique.

There was no official comment from Israel sources at the United Nations on the Thant report.

But Deputy Premier Yigal Allon declared in a speech in occupied Jordan that Israel would negotiate with Egypt without previous conditions on borders, provided Egypt would do the same. Allon said Israel had territorial demands and maps to submit but would save them for the negotiating table.

Egypt has demanded that Israel pull back to its boundaries before the 1967 war. Israel says it will not give up Old Jerusalem that it took from Jordan, the Golan Heights, captured from Syria, and certain other territory it says is essential for its security.

In Cairo, the Palestine National Council broke up its conference but agreed to attempt to work out differences among the 11 quarrelling guerrilla organizations during the next three months.

Yasir Arafat, head of the predominant Al Fatah group, said the council decided to try "a change of tactics but not strategy. We are not giving up the liberation."

Barrage Hits House on Final Day for New Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — New legislation flooded the Missouri House Friday, the final day for introduction of bills and proposed constitutional amendments.

They filtered in as the House worked on bills already on the calendar. Among those advanced was a bill to establish the office of commissioner on administration under the governor.

He would have the day-to-day task of running agencies under the governor's administration. By amendment he would have to be at least 30 years old, at least five years a resident of Missouri, and hold a college degree in public affairs or business. He would have to have at least six years of experience as a business administrator.

Rep. Richard J. Rabbitt, DSt. Louis, offered a congressional redistricting bill that doesn't redistrict. It merely shows the districts as they are now but, Rabbitt said, it would give the House a bill on which to work in an effort to re-align the districts in accordance with the 1970 federal census results.

Rabbitt also introduced a bill to raise the daily expense allowance of legislators from the present $10 to $20 and to increase the number of House employes from 125 to 198. The latter provision would assure every one of the 163 members at least one secretary or clerk.

A bill offered by Rep. James F. Conway, D-St. Louis, would add a special income tax with the revenue going into an urban crisis fund. The money would be allocated to the cities with Kansas City and St. Louis getting double portions, cities between 2,500 and 4,500 population getting single portions and those between 500 and 2,500 getting half portions.

Other measures would:

Change the Constitution to eliminate the county property tax and institute instead a special income tax to be collected by the state and returned to the counties. The tax would not be levied on net incomes of less than $7,000. On incomes between $7,000 and $8,000 it would be 2 per cent and would range up to 20 per cent on net incomes of over $200,000.

Require that the state pay the full cost of public education at an estimated outlay of about $700,000 a year.

Provide that any federal funds coming to the state on any federal revenue sharing plan would be allocated to the counties and the city of St. Louis on the basis of population if the fund is not given to the state for a specific purpose.

License pawnbrokers.

Let restaurants get liquor licenses if their food business grosses $200,000 a year.

Have the State Board of Education accredit and license private schools.

Require the state to provide office space in Kansas City for all Jackson County legislators.

Establish a state land development agency to issue bonds and provide public improvement in cities, including street, sewer or water lines, utilities or recreation facilities.

Create a seven-member environmental improvement authority with power to issue bonds for construction of antipollution systems and either lease or sell them to municipalities.

Require that after next Jan. 1 a car owner would have to show proof of responsibility before getting his car registration.

Levy a sales tax on public parking facilities.

Require the comptroller issue monthly reports on the condition of the state's finances.

Levy a countywide school tax in St. Louis and allocate it to the school districts on an equal basis so poor districts would have better financing than they now have.

Ban nudist organizations or distribution of their literature in Missouri.

Thursday, a bill was offered by Rep. Joe Schorgl, D-Kansas City, that would repeal the present sales tax exemption on mining machinery, newsprint and the sale or rental of film or refords. It would also levy the 3 per cent sales tax on all advertising except that appearing in newspapers.

Another bill would establish a Missouri Surplus Money Investment Board, composed of the state treasurer, auditor and comptroller. The board would decide where and how much inactive state funds would be invested.

A proposed constitutional change would let the Department of Agriculture make agricultural development loans to farmers.

Harlech Sees Third Threat to Mankind

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — Lord Harlech, former British ambassador to the United States, said Friday night a third threat to mankind—the threat of self-destruction—has developed since Winston Churchill spoke 25 years ago of the marauders of war and tyranny.

Harlech warned against the continued degradation of the environment in an address before 1,400 persons at Westminster College that marked the 25th anniversary of Churchill's "Iron Curtain" speech.

He said in the last quarter century there have been "profound changes in the world — few of them for the better."

Noting that Churchill spoke optimistically of "enough for all" in the dawning of an age of materialistic well - being, Lord Harlech said the world's population has increased by at least 1.25 billion since the Churchill speech in Fulton March 5, 1946.

Three Injured In Two Wrecks

Three were injured in two area traffic mishaps yesterday.

One mile north of Malden on highway 25 at 7:45 a.m., a 1955 Chevrolet traveling south, driven by Charles Headd, 22, Malden, went out of control and overturned in a ditch, the highway patrol said.

Headd sustained cuts and a brain injury and was taken to Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

At 5:25 p.m. on I-55 16 miles south of Sikeston, a 1968 Pontiac traveling south, driven by Larrie Roberts, 21, Kennett, was in the passing lane and was struck in the side by a southbound 1971 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Leonard Worton, 42, Houston, when the pickup cut in on the Pontiac, the patrol said.

The Pontiac spun around and stopped, and the pickup went out of control, went across the median and overturned, hurtling a tank from the pickup through the window of a 1971 Chevrolet traveling north, driven by Luther Bledoe, 46, Forrest City, Ark., causing the Bledoe car to go into a ditch.

Worton and Bledoe sustained minor injuries and were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

WHY DON'T THEY ATTACK THE EMEMY?

Recently, when the freedom-fighting forces of South Vietnam crossed over the Laotion border to cut off the so-called "Ho Chi Minh trail," a few raucous vioces were raised in Washington to sharply criticize the move. The attacks — by four U. S. Senators in particular — were leveled against our President, our armed forces, our Vietnamese allies and friends, and against the frightening thought that we might abandon our long-standing "no-win" policy. But nowhere have we read the slightest murmer of complaint or criticism, on the part of the four leading critics, against the communist enemy. The unavoidable question is "Why not?"

The South Vietnamese forces found tons upon tons of communist military supplies, weapons and ammunition stashed away in caves, bunkers and tunnels, not more than 20 miles inside the border of Laos from free Vietnam — but hundreds of miles away from the Red supply bases in Communist North Vietnam and Red China. For reasons which we cannot understand, the noisy critics in Washington seem to have forgotten completely that in Geneva, Switzerland, on July 23, 1962, an international pact was signed by the official delegations of 14 nations. to guarantee the freedom and neutrality of Laos. The fourteen nations were the United States, the USSR, Britain, France, Canada, Communist China, Burma, Poland, North Vietnam, Cambodia, India, South Vietnam, Thailand and Laos.

The agreements, solemnly signed by North Vietnam, China, and the USSR, specifically stated, among other things that:

"They will not establish (in Laos) ... any foreign military base, foreign strongpoint or other foreign military installation of any kind," and

"They will not use (Laotion territory) ... for interference in the internal affairs of other countries."

It is bad enough that the Red enemy is using the territory of Laos to set up supply bases for their weapons of death to be used against the peaceful nations of Cambodia, Thailand and South Vietnam. It is worse that they do so in complete and cynical violation of their own promises not to do so, made only nine years ago. If the noisy complainers in Washington are truly concerned with the preservation of world peace, why do they not attack and condemn the Communists who are not only "endangering world peace, but who are at the same time violating their own international agreements? Let the carping critics take their complaints to Hanoi, to Peking, to Moscow, and to the United Nations — and not to the White House or the Pentagon.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK

Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. will celebrate their 59th birthday on March 7, 1971, during National Girl Scout Week -- March 7-13. Founded in 1912 in Savannah, Georgia, American Girl Scouting has grown up with the nation. The theme of the organization for the years 1966-71, "Values to Hold, Worlds to Explore," represents values held constant for almost 60 years -- but expressed each day, month, and year in a modern and timely way.

Today's Girl Scouts work against poverty and inequality; last year the organization's National Board of Directors voted to support the major goal objectives of the Report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. The 3.5 million members express their beliefs -- their values -- through service in their own and neighboring communities, in schools, libraries, centers, hospitals, parks, or wherever good will and dedication can be useful.

Let's wish them a heartfelt "Happy Birthday" during their week.

VA HOSPITALS IN TROUBLE, FIVE-MONTH STUDY SHOWS

While America's 166 - hospital Veterans Administration system provides basically good care for most patients, it is also suffering from "critical malfunctions," a five-month study by Reader's Digest has found.

Reporting on the study in the magazine's March issue, author Kenneth Tomlinson says that inadequate funding and management deficiencies have caused equipment shortages and breakdowns in many hospitals, along with critical personnel problems. One result is needlessly long hospital stay for veterans.

"In many VA hospital," he writes, "X-ray series that should be completed in 24 hours take from three to ten days because of faulty equipment and lack of personnel." Even in a relatively modern hospital such as the VA's Miami, Fla. unit, the stay for surgical patients was 15 per cent longer in 1970 than in the previous years, mainly because pre-surgical tests were delayed.

Personnel problems, too, are acute, the article says. Starting salaries in many categories are substantially lower than those for comparable jobs in community hospitals. Result: VA officials complain that it takes months for them to fill vacancies that a community hospital can fill vacancies that a community hospital can fill in days.

Tragedy can arise from these shortages. One veteran at the Los Angeles VA hospital needed special nursing care to clear periodic accumulations of mucus from a breathing tube in his throat. But the understaffed hospital could not provide the needed care, and the man died of suffocation when his tube went uncleared.

According to Dr. Baldwin Lamson, director of hospitals at UCLA, the Los Angeles VA facility has "approximately one half of the personnel we consider essential."

Ironically, the article declares, many VA hospital administrators aggravate these problems by fighting to keep men in hospitals who could better be treated on an out-patient basis. The reason, says Tomlinson, is because VA hospitals receive most of their funding on the basis of the number of beds filled, rather than the total activity in the hospital as a whole. Moreover, VA regulations prohibit outpatient treatment for certain types of non-service-related illness.

Thus in Miami, as one example, a veteran was admitted for a three-day stay to treat a mild asthma attach which a community hospital would have treated in a few hours.

"In every major hospital I visited," Tomlinson writes, "doctors and nurses could say that some 25 per cent of their patients -- the elderly, the alcoholic, those with minor ailments -- should not be occupying an expensive hospital bed."

While needed construction goes unfunded, a number of small, poorly utilized VA hospitals in isolated areas stubbornly remain open. For example, the town of Marlin, Tex. (population 6,000) boasts a VA hospital, yet is just 40 minutes from an 800-bed VA facility in Temple, Tex., and just 30 minutes from the 1,000-bed Waco, Tex. facility -- a psychiatric hospital with general medical facilities.

In 1965 President Lyndon Johnson proposed closing 11 outdated or isolated VA facilities, at an estimated saving of 24 million tax dollars annually. The proposal was vigorously fought by Donald E. Johnson, then national commander of the American Legion. Today Donald E. johnson is VA Administrator, with "no thought of shutting down a single veteran facility."

Yet, Tomlinson declares, "top-ranking VA officials from previous administrations feel strongly that many hospitals should be closed,and their resources diverted to upgrade university-affiliated acute-care centers." Other steps to improve the system might include treating eligible veterans as outpatients, and revising the present funding formula to reflect overall level of hospital activities, rather than just the number of filled beds.

The VA has itself proposed dividing the system into 37 geographical regions, each to contain a core hospital to treat acutely ill patients, and a number of peripheral units for the less seriously ill.

Tomlinson notes that VA medicine has made great strides since World War II days; every VA hospital today is fully accredited, and 94 per cent are affiliated with university medical schools. Both in medical care and research, the VA picture has many bright spots.

Still, the problems persist. And with the VA system costing $1.9 billion a year, the American taxpayer has a substantial stake in reform.

THIS COULD BANKRUPT EMPLOYERS

Thousands, possibly millions of employers of the United States could be put out of business if Congress enacts a law advocated by the President.

It is for a full coverage health and hospital insurance plan under which the employer would pay two - thirds of the cost, the employee would pay one -third of it.

It would add billions to present costs of doing business, whether small or large. Business is already plagued with rapidly rising costs and charges from every direction. It could be that this measure would kill the proverbial goose that lays the golden egg by providing the last straw needed to push some businesses into failure, creating more unemployment.

There is nothing wrong with insurance that will protect people, in fact we need it. But we do believe the financial burden should be largely the responsibility of the person who gets the benefits.

Like these presidential commission straights were having a hearing in, uh, you know, Washington, on obscenity and pornography. No, man, I don't mean the Vietnam war and the military budget. I mean, bourgeois - type obscenity, like sex and porny pics and, you know, four - letter words.

Anyway, this hippie character from the Underground Press Syndicate was testifying, trying to get it through to the straights that nobody had a right to stifle his, you know, creativity. WHERE BUREAUCRACY LEFT OFF

Human nature being what it is, pure altruism is a rather scarce commodity. It functions on a hit or miss basis and can never be depended upon, at least at the present stage of human development, to solve the bills of mankind. Political attempts to solve these ills through massive government welfare programs, more often than not, bog down in self - serving bureaucracy. These are the reasons why the trend toward business solutions of such things as finding jobs for the hard - core unemployed is highly encouraging.

The nation's businessmen are tackling the problem as an opportunity for progressive minded industries to strengthen the economic system upon which their existence depends by bringing the fruits of private enterprise to more people. This means more jobs and more braodly - based high living standards. By the same token, improving the environment is now looked upon as a business problem. The utility industry has become a leader in this new - horizon type of business operation. A utility company is a fixed part of every community. Therefore, it has a proprietary interest in community building.

The head of the American Gas Association, Mr. W. Morton Jacobs, speaking for one of the nation's largest industry associations, described how the Southern California business community is mounting an attack on various social problems, including smog, bad transportation and job training for the large Mexican - American and Negro populations. His view of business responsibility is more or less typical of the new trend. He says, "The role of the businessman is not one but many. He should first dedicate much of this time, talents and his buitl -in problem -solving skills to the rebuilding of our cities. He should dedicate them, to the limit of business prudence, to all the ills that affect human envrionment - - - Perhaps most important, he should take the initiative and start now."

DOWN TO THE LAST BULLET

In their sweep of Communist sanctuaries in Cambodai, which is limited to a penetration of exactly 21.7 miles (35 kilometers), American troops have discovered vast caches of arms and supplies.

At one point, a wire dispatch quoted the Pentagon as announcing the operation had captured enough ammunition for the communists to have conducted 719 small hit -and -run attacks on South Vietnamese cities.

Not 718 attacks, not 720 attacks, but precisely 719.

This is what builds confidence in the military mind — its mastery of the fine logistical details. As for the larger question, when the war is going to end, that's anybody's guess.

TIME FOR AN ANSWER

During the long hearings into the affairs of the prescription drug industry, handpicked witnesses have time after time left the impression that doctors and drug firms, by and large, have failed to perform as conscientiously as the public has a right to expect.

Few witnesses have been permitted to appear with the other side of the story. All the public has heard is that one drug is just as good as another if it bears the same generic name, irrespective of where it was manufactured. Various governmental agencies and spokesmen for investigative bodies have harped on the theme of "Therapeutic Equivalency" in a campaign against the use by doctors of drugs bearingthe names of outstanding pharmaceutical manufacturers. The campaign continues despite growing scientific evidence that therapeutic equivalency is a figment of the bureaucratic imagination. Representatives from the Academy of General Practice, the American Medical Association and highly qualified practicing physicians, who have sought the witness stand to present the case for doctors and the drug industry, have been shunted aside -- including a Portland, Oregon, physician who resents the one - sided testimony.

This physician, Dr. Clinton S. McGill, a private family physician, has never had an opportunity to express his views before the Congressional Subcommittee investigating the affairs of the pharmaceutical industry, although this Committee has apparently been only too glad to provide a forum for the views of the critics. However, for the record, in speaking before a meeting of colleagues and drug manufacturers, he said, "I will continue to insist on product identification .... It seems to me that if the ... Subcommittee were seriously considering the best intersts of the public they would be the first to demand product identification. Then ... any kind of an abnormal reaction, any question of therapeutic value, any problem involving the quality of the product .... could be traced right back to the source ... there is a difference between products bearing the same generic label ... there is such a thing as quality control... the well - earned reputation of the ethical drug companies is something of value!" The question the public has a right to ask is why mor qualified spokesmen have not been heard on this subject.

STATE DOESN'T NEED 'PLUMBING CZAR'

A regulatory measure pending in the House of the General Assembly which appears contrary to the best interests of all Missourians except plumbers.

The bill, introduced by State Rep. Eugene Mazzuca, South St. Louis Democrat, at the request of Plumbers Local 35 of St. Louis, would place control of outstate plumbing in the hands of one man — a plumber appointed by the governor.

It would, in effect, create a plumbing "czar" or "dictator," since that one man would be determining the state's plumbing code for all Missourians living outside of St. Louis, St. Louis County, Kansas City and Jackson County, which are exempted by reason of size in population.

The proposal, being pushed by the plumbing industry, has been strongly criticized by the Consulting Engineers Council of Missouri, which contends it would "greatly increase" construction costs without corresponding benefits.

Council officers charge the bill is "self - serving in terms of administration," that it creates a plumbing dictator and provides for no appeals and no specific methods of licensing plumbers.

Another critic of the proposed legislation, Neal J. Campbell, winner of the 1961 St. Louis Award for helping draft St. Louis' model building code, said the bill is "so vague and ambiguous" it would be thrown out of court on its first test. It is so broad, he noted, it would cover a cistern and pump which a farmer might have for his own home's water system.

It could even prohibit anyone from changing a washer in his faucet, Campbell asserted.

Two years ago, in the last regular session of the Legislature similar bills were introduced in the House and Senate, calling for the establishment of a commission dominated by plumbers to oversee a statewide plumbing code. These measures sensibly were rejected.

Missourians don't need special interest legislation now anymore than they did then. Regulations should be designed to benefit the great majority of citizens, not a small minority. The bill calling for a plumbing commissar appears to fail that test. Therefore it should be thrown out.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Some weary war strategists, who have followeed the confidential communiques from Saigon, have an eerie feeling that history is repeating itself.

Back in 1966, the reports to the Pentagon gave the impression that the U.S. was close to victory. They claimed that the Viet Cong had been hounded out of their hideouts by search-and-destroy missions and B-52 raids. Left behind in the overrun sanctuaries, assertedly, were tons of desperately needed food, arms and medical supplies.

The black-pajamaed, bark-helmeted guerrillas, specialists in ambush, supposedly were becoming the ambushed. Their morale had been rubbed raw, it was said, by constant harassment. Their losses both in casualties and defections had been so severe, according to the communiques, that the Viet Cong had been forced to conscript 15-year-old from the villages.

The secret reports also described the hopelessness in Hanoi. The rulers were reported to be weary of the war, divided between Moscow and Peking. Supposedly, they realized North Vietnam, even with Chinese support, could hever hope to match American naval and air power.

An aide told us he watched President Johnson once in 1966 stroke his chin with satisfaction as he studied a top-secret intelligence summary prepared in news capsule form for his easy reading. After awhile, LBJ looked up from his reading. "The war," he said, "should be over in 1967."

HISTORY REPEATS

Today, the intelligence reports contain the same hint that the war might be won after all. Enemy forces in South Vietnam are reported to be so starved for supplies that they are incapable of a major defensive. Their lifeline to the sea has been cut off, and the South Vietnamese are in the process of pacifying the countryside, though Laos.

This Ho Chi Minh Trail complex is a spiderweb of roads and trails, many of them covered with camouflaged canopies. The South Vietnamese have destroyed tons of supplies and ripped up a few miles of fuel pipeline.

The confidential reports acknowledge that the South Vietnamese have become bogged down in the Laotian jungle. But they are said to be held up more by the rugged, unfamiliar terrain and the elaborate trail system than by enemy resistance.

There have been North Vietnamese counterattacks, but these assertedly had been expected. The battle reports claim the North Vietnmese have been getting the worst of it--with casualties as high as five to one--because of the downpour of hot lead and exploding bombs on enemy positions from the air.

Intelligence reports on Hanoi, meanwhile, tell of weariness, divisions and discouragement within the ruling circles. Some of the reports read almost like carbon copies of those written five years ago.

VICTORY IN '72

"By early 1972," President Nixon confided to Alice Roosevelt Longworth at a recent White House dinner,"I believe we will have achieved the objectives for which we went into South Vietnam in the first place."

The optimism around the White House reminds Senator Hubert Humphrey, for one,of the mood that prevailed in 1966.

The former Vice President was invited to the White House the other day for a private briefing on the Vietnam War. Henry Kissinger, the President's chief foreign policy adviser, spoke hopefully, almost eagerly about the latest developments.

"I don't want to be unkind," said Humphrey, "but this is the same thing I have heard before."

Kissinger insisted that the situations was "different," that North Vietnam had been war.

"I hope you are right," said Humphrey. But he went away shaking his head.

SUPPRESSION OF INFORMATION

The University of Missouri, home of the famed Freedom of Information Center, doesn't practice the information policy it preaches. Its three-man Finance Committee has adamantly refused to give Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., any information on its utility stock holdings.

Comptroller R.H. Benzoni told us the committee refused Metcalf the information on its stock portfolio by the two-one vote, even though it has made the same information available to some localpapers. Metcalf has delved into the stock portfolio of 60 universities. The home of the Freedom of Information Center was one of only two refusing the data.

By comparing the corporate holdings of universities to the tiny number of consumer-oriented courses, Metcalf has sought to show an axis between the giant private utility firms and the academic world. He found the universities who responded to his poll held $905.5 million in oil, gas and electric company stocks.

NEW WAR ON NIXON: Shocked Labor Chiefs Unite To Fight Federal Indictments Over Political Spending.

WASHINGTON: -- Since Eve ate apples, Lord Byron once said, much depends on dinner for the hungry sinner. This appears to be a short course in political action apparently now very offensive to the Justice Dept.

Attorney General John Mitchell seems to believe that political dinners are the root of all evil, if the $100- and $1,000-a-plate ducats are purchased by unions for the good of the "party," be it Republican or Democratic.

About a year and a half ago, he pushed through the indictment of sailors' chief Paul Hall, pragmatic head of the Seafarers, for dispensing fiscal largesse to Congressional candidates. The other day the Justice Dept. hit little Tony Boyle of the United Mine Workers on similar charges of violating the Corrupt Practices Act.

And some of the Attorney General's agents are looking into fraternal financing of federal candidates by building and construction trade unions -- especially on the West Coast.

There have been some indictments of shipping companies and banks. Mr. Mitchell shows a rather equalitarian, even insouciant, manner in all this which may cause snowblindness at upcoming Democratic as well as Republican fund-raising banquets -- so glaring will the reflection be from the empty white-covered tables.

In 1969, the Justice Dept. hit Paul Hall for contributing about $1 million to both Democrats and Republicans and for buying tickets to Richard Nixon's gala victory dinner allegedly with central union funds. Now the indictment of the miners' Tony Boyle and company include somewhat the same charges. The miners' Labor Non Partisan League (LNPL— gave $30,000 to the Salute-to-Humphrey Dinner Committee.

Incidentally, under the law, the donee is as guilty as the donor if the latter is convicted!

If convicted, Mr. Hall and some of his colleagues could do quite a stretch in jail. So could the perpetually aggravated Tony Boyle -- about 32 years worth of prison if convicted on all counts.

When sailor Hall was hit, the word spread that is was just a tough break and after all it was Attorney General Ramsey Clark who started it all in the final days of Lyndon Johnson's administration.

The technicalities of the indictment are not vital here. Point is that Paul Hall stood up, shouted you won't put "the bull" on us, come and get us the hard way, we'll fight the whole distance. And everybody prepared to watch former ship engine oiler Hall square off with the Justice Dept. After all Mr. Hall has not lost many, not to Lyndon Johnson, the Canadian government, old Egypt, the Soviet Union or Jimmy Hoffa.

And not long after the indictment, Paul Hall's intimate friend George Meany, making it two heavyweights for the price of one fight, joined in and trying to "intimidate the labor movement" and curtail its special political machinery such as the Committee on Political Education (COPE), Hall's own Seafarers' Political Activity Donation committee (SPAD), the auto union's Citizen Action Program (CAP) and even the Teamsters' Democrat, Republican, Independent Voter Education (DRIVE) networks. Virtually every union has a nonpartisan league. "We take the position that we are not going to be intimidated," Meany said at that time. Now, under the guidance of the Justice Dept., the special grand jury here has indicted the miners chief -- and the labor leaders are distrubed.

Their political leagues -- all under acronyms such as COPE, DRIVE, CAP, etc. -- buy tickets. They have been planning to buy them for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's New York State Republican dinner this spring; for the Democratic banquets to liquidate the Democratic national debt of some $9 million, and even for the upcoming soirees of the Republican National Committee.

Most unions have favorite congressmen -- for lobbying on maritme, import and export, special subsidies, civil service laws and a host of other needs.

But now they hear those prison doors clanging -- and not only for what they have been planning to do in 1972 but for what they may have done in 1968 and back into history. No doubt John Mitchell has declared war on the labor movement. He has hit them where it hurts. He will cripple their influence on th eHill and at the national nominating conventions if he sends Mr. Hall or the miners group to prison.

The attorney general appears determined to smash an entire political way of life. If it is a crime to buy tickets, it is also a crime to sue union money on union cars, printing, telephone banks, literature, computers -- the whole gamut -- for federal candidates.

If the use of union dollars, through the political committees, can lead to charges of conspiracy and embezzlement there will be a sharp curtailment of activity though not of political propaganda. It will hit many a Republican congressman such as Jerry Ford. But it will hit the Democrats hardest.

The indictment of the 66-year-old Tony Boyle on some 13 counts has needled most of the national labor leaders. Paul Hall can take care of himself. But Tony Boyle, faced by the attacks on the United Mine Workers, is preparing to negotiate with the coal operators, struggling under the ghost-like saga of the late imperious John Lewis who just never bothered to account for such details as the dispersion of millions of dollars. Thus, the miners leader is particulary vulnerable. He was seeking cover in the United Steel Workers of America and had been talking with its chief I.W. Abel about merging with it.

Now he faces 32 years in prison and huge fines for contributing politically. And the others are next. It will be taken for granted that this all was cleared by the White House.

Rules For Raising Children

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago you printed Twelve Rules For Raising Children. I carried the column in my wallet until it became so dog-eared and yellowed with age that it is no longer legible. Please print it again, Ann. It's worth a repeat. ---San Antonio Mother.

Dear Mother: Here it is. Thanks for asking:

1. Remember that a child is a gift from God, the richest of all blessings. Do not attempt to mold him in the image of yourself, your father, your brother or your neighbor. Each child is an individual and should be permitted to be himself.

2. Don't crush a child's spirit when he fails. And never compare him with others who have outshone him.

3. Remember that anger and hostility are natural emotions. Help your child to find socially acceptable outlets for these normal feelings or they may be turned inward and erupt in the form of physical or mental illness.

4. Discipline your child with firmness and reason. Don't let your anger throw you off balance. If he knows you are fair you will not lose his respect or his love. And make sure the punishment fits the crime. Even the youngest child has a keen sense of justice.

5. Remember that each child needs two parents. Present a united front. Never join with your child against your mate. This can create in your child (as well as in yourself) emotional conflicts. It can also create feelings of guilt, confusion and insecurity.

6. Do not hand your child everything his little heart desires. Permit him to know the thrill of earning and the joy of achieving. Grant him the greatest of all satisfactions -- the pleasure that comes with personal accomplishment.

7. Do not set yourself up as the epitome of perfection. This is a difficult role to play 24 hours a day. You will find it easier to communicate with your child if you let him know that Mon and Dad can err, too.

8. Don't make threats in anger, or impossible promises when you are in a generous mood. Threaten or promise only that which you can live up to. To a child, a parent's word means everything. The child who has lost faith in his parents has difficulty believing in anything.

9. Do not smother your child with superficial manifestations of "love." The purest and healthiest love expresses it self in day-in, day-out training which breeds self-confidence and independence.

10. Teach your child there is dignity in hard work, whether it is performed with callused hands that shovel coal or skilled fingers that manipulate surgical instruments. Let him know a useful life is a blessed one and a life of ease and pleasure-seeking is empty and meaningless.

11. Do not try to protect your child against every small blow and disappointment. Adversity strengthens character and makes us compassionate. Trouble is the great equalizer. Let him learn it.

12. Teach your child to love God and to love his fellow men. Don't SEND your child to a place of worship -- TAKE him there. Children learn from example. Telling him something is not teaching him. If you give your child a deep and abiding faith in God it can be his strength and his light when all else fails.

How far should a teen-age go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting -- What are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspater enclosing 50 / in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

In Defense of Women

by H.L. Mencken

MARRIAGE AND THE LAW

This was not always the case. No more than a century ago, even by American law, the most sentimental in the world, the husband was the head of the family firm, lordly and autonomous. He had authority over the purse-strings, over the children, and even over his wife. He could enforce his mandates by appropriate punishment, including the corporal. His sovereignty and dignity were carefully guarded by legislation, the product of thousands of years of experience and raiocination. He was safeguarded in his self-respect by the most elaborate and efficient devices, and they had the support of public opinion.

Consider, now, the changes that a few short years have wrought. Today, by the laws of most American states — laws proposed, by most cases, by maudlin and often notoriously extravagant agitators, and passed by sentimental orgy — all of the old rights of the husband have been converted into obligations. He no longer has any control over his wife's property; she may devote its income to the family or she may squander that income upon idle follies, and he can do nothing. She has equal authority in regulating and disposing of the children and, in the case of infants, more than he. There is no law compelling her to do her share of the family labour: she may spend her whole time in cinema theatres or gadding about the shops as she will. She cannot be forced to perpetuate the family name if she does not want to. She cannot be attacked with masculine weapons, e. g. fists and firearms, when she makes an assault with feminine weapons, e. g., snuffling, invective and sabotage. Finally, no lawful penalty can be visited upon her if she fails absolutely, either deliberately or through mere incapacity, to keep the family habitat clean, the children in order, and the victuals eatable.

Now view the situation of the husband. The instant he submits to marriage, his wife obtains a large and inalienable share in his property, including all he may acquire in future; in most American states the minimum is one-third, and, failing children, one-half. He cannot dispose of his real estate without her consent; he cannot even deprive her of it by will. She may bring up his children carelessly and idiotically, cursing them with abominable manners and poisoning their nascent minds against him, and he has no redress. She may neglect her home, gossip and lounge about all day, put impossible food upon his table, steal his small change, pry into his private papers, hand over his home to the Periplaneta americana, accuse him falsely of preposterous adulteries, affront his friends, and lie about him to the neighbors — and he can do nothing. She may compromise his honour by indecent dressing, write letters to moving-picture actors, and expose him to ridicule by going into politics — and he is helpless.

Let him undertake the slightest rebellion, over and beyond mere rhetorical protest, and the whole force of the state comes down upon him. If he corrects her with the bastinado or locks her up, he is good for six months in jail. If he cuts off her revenues, he is incarcerated until he makes them good. And if he seeks surcease in flight, taking the children with him, he is pursued by the gendarmerie, brought back to his duties, and depicted in the public press as a scoundrelly kidnapper, fit only for the knout. In brief, she is under no legal necessity whatsoever to carry out her part of the compact at the altar of God, whereas he faces instant disgrace and punishment for the slightest failure to observe its last letter. For a few grave crimes of commission, true enough, she may be proceeded against. Open adultery is a recreation that is denied to her. She cannot poison her husband. She must not assault him with edged tools, or leave him altogether, or strip off her few remaining garments and go naked. But for the vastly more various and numerous crimes of omission — and in sum they are more exasperating and intolerable than even overt felony — she cannot be brought to book at all.

The scene I depict is American, but it will soon extend its horrors to all Protestant countries. The newly-enfrancished women of every one of them cherish long programs of what they call social improvement, and practically the whole of that improvement is based upon devices for augmenting their own relative autonomy and power. The English wife of tradition, so thoroughly a femme covert, is being displaced by a gadabout, truculent, irresponsible creature, full of strange new ideas about her rights, and strongly disinclined to submit to her husband's authority, or to devote herself honestly to the upkeep of his house, or to bear him a biological sufficiency of heirs. And the German Hausfrau, once so innocently consecrated to Kirche, Kuche and Kinder, is going the same way.

Controversy Tops 'L' Final

By RON JAYNES

Controversy, similar to that of the 1969 class M state basketball tournament finals, which involved the Oran Eagles and a decision call by an official, highlighted Friday's class L regional tournament final at the fieldhouse where the Sikeston Bulldogs edged the Dexter Bearcats, 64-63, in overtime to move into the state tournament next week.

The Sikeston incident, which was unfortunate for all concerned, occurred in the final seconds or after time had elapsed in overtime when a foul was called. The question was raised whether the foul had been called before the final buzzer sounded or whether the foul occurred after the buzzer had sounded. If it had occurred before time had run out, a Dexter play would have had a chance to tie and send the team ahead, but the ruling made by the official timer was that time had elapsed and the foul was not recorded.

In 1969 when the Oran Eagles were competing for the class M state title against Dixon, an official dampened the OHS hopes by calling a seldom used, but seldom abused time rule on a free throw, which took the Eagles Red Johnson from the line after he put his team within one point of tying the Bulldogs.

Friday's incident, similar only in the way it decided the outcome of the game, as the floor referees had only the word of the official timer to go by.

The near capacity crowd, screaming with every move as Dexter took the ball out of bounds with six seconds left on the clock in the overtime, either drowned out the final buzzer or it never went off.

That is a question that will long be remembered by the many DHS fans, who attended the battle, not to mention the players and coaches. It's unfortunate that the game wasn't a run-away in either teams favor, that would have possibly kept down the hard feelings.

The game officials, Carl Townsend and Bob Johnson, can't be blamed for the incident. They were like many, including this writer, who didn't hear a buzzer or any other signal that would have made the decision easier.

For the outcome of a game to lie in one man's hands is a rule that must be changed before other incidents like Friday night's occur.

We're not saying he was right or wrong. But do say that in such a situation a two-minute extension of overtime would be the most feasible and maybe cut down on some of the tension.

Well, it's history now, the Sikeston Bulldogs are going into Monday's state tournament at Cape Girardeau.

What Friday's incident will do to any future playing of the regional at Sikeston is a big question, one that concerns many.

It seems that controversy almost always revolves around the best, that couldn't be more true as is the case of Townsend, who is considered to be the top official in the state.

He was one of the two officials, who were involved in officiating at the Dixon—Oran game...No, he wasn't the one who made the big call, as was the case at the fieldhouse Friday night.

Officials, timers and scorers are selected by the tournament committee, which is composed of representatives of three of the schools involved.

SHS Bulldogs No. 1

By GEORGE SMITH

Included in the National Federation of State high school Athletic Association rule book on basketball is a section that may interest sports fans...."Expiration of playing time in each quarter, half or extra period shall be indicated by the timer's signal. This signal terminates player activity. If the timer's signal fails to sound, or is not heard, the timers shall go on the court or use other means to notify the referee immediately. If, in the meantime, a goal has been made or a foul has occurred, the referee shall consult the timers. If the timers agree that time expired before the ball was in flight, the goal shall not count. If they agree that the period ended before the foul occured, the foul shall be disregarded unless it was unsportsmanlike. If timers disagree, the goal shall count or the fould shall be penalized unless the referee has knowledge which alters such ruling."

The rule book backs up the decision of the referees and the timer made in the final game of the regional class L basketball tournament in the Field House Friday night. The controversy arose in the overtime as a foul was called on Sikeston's Undrea West after apparently the final gun had sounded and the referees had been unable to hear the buzzer above the roar of the crowd.

Playing in their third regional championship game in the past three years the Sikeston Bulldogs won the right to go to State with a 64 to 63 overtime victory over the Dexter Bearcats. Several players vied for the limelight.

Pope Hunt was the big stick. The 6-4 sophomore, tore eight rebounds from the boards while hitting 100 per cent from the field and from the free throw line. This big sophomore hit two for two from the field and three for three from the charity line.

In the waning seconds of the regulation game Big Pope Hunt shot a beautiful hook shot to tie the game, 61 to 61, and send the Sikestonians into overtime with added momentum.

"Pope deserves credit for the extra spirit he gave our boys out there tonight" says Coach N.P. McDaniel.

Lee King and West did not go unheralded. The 6-1 senior and 6-0 junior combined for 40 points and key steals in the last minutes of the regulation game and overtime period.

King netted 23 and West added 17. In the overtime West was the only Bulldog to find the range. The sharp shooting guard-forward hit a field goal and a free throw to lead the Dogs into the victory circle.

Dexter was not without its stars. Danny Summers, Terry Demaree and Randy Northington gave the Dogs fits.

Demaree collected eight points in the fourth quarter and two more points in the overtime before the Dogs could stop the rugged senior.

Summers also added to the Bearcat fourth quarter come from behind as he netted seven points in that period, scoring 12 on the evening.

Northington, the big work horse for Coach Jim Hall, battled the Sikeston cagers on the boards throughout the encounter but his efforts were for naught.

The championship game was tense and exciting. Both squads battled on an even basis for the first half of play with neither squad able to build up a substantial lead. The half score was 28 to 28.

The second half was a bit more Sikeston. The Bulldogs began to find the range and before the Bearcats could cool off the hot shooting Dogs, they were down by seven points, 49 to 42.

The Bearcats had their work cut out for them in the fourth quarter. They had to check the sharp shooters of the Dogs while compiling a few points of their own. Behind the out-court accuracy of Demaree and the under the board heroics of Summers the Dexter quintet accomplished its task and took the lead with 2:47 left.

The last two minutes were the scene of cool ball handling by the Bearcats. They attempted to stall for the victory. The Bearcat strategy failed as the Dogs' Pope Hunt scored on a beautiful hook shot with 0:58 showing on the clock to tie the game, 61 to 61. That's the way the regulation game ended.

In the overtime Dexter was the first to score. Demaree hit a jumper with 2:40 showing on the clock to give Dexter the lead, 63 to 61. Sikeston's West was fouled and brought the Dogs within one point, 63 to 62, as he connected on his charity shot. With 0:34 second showing on the clock and Sikeston trailing 63 to 62, Lee King was fouled as Francis Guethle collected his fifth foul while attempting to steal the ball. King missed his first of a possible one and one.

As Dexter passed the ball downcourt West charged out of nowhere to steal the ball and drive in for the layup putting Sikeston into the lead with 0:06 left on the clock.

Dexter failed to score as the Sikeston Bulldogs claimed first place in the class L regional at the fieldhouse admist the yells of "We're Number One" and "Sikeston Goes To State".

Monday night the Dogs journey to Cape Girardeau and Houck Field House to battle Desoto in first round action of the class L state tournament, Sikeston has gone to State three consecutive years but has fallen three times to win a championship. Sikeston enters the tournament this year with a record of playing superb ball in its last six outings.

In advancing to state play and the elite 16 teams left in the state, Sikeston shot 50 per cent from the field and 54.5 per cent from the charity line. The rebounding edge also went to the Sikeston cagers as the Dogs pulled down 38 to the Cat's 28.

HERMAN PRINCE (24) collected eight points in the Bulldog's 64-63 overtime win over Dexter for the class L regional basketball title Friday night. Prince also had a big night rebounding. The Bulldogs will play Desoto in first round play of the class L state tournament in Cape Girardeau's Houck fieldhouse Monday at 7:30 p.m.

THE RED PEPPERS, Sikeston high school's famed cheerleading section, were armed with numerous signs for last night's championship game of the class L regional basketball tournament, two of which are pictured. "Dogs Go To State" and "Dogs Have Team Power." Coach N.P. McDaniel's team edged Dexter, 64-63, in overtime for the title and a berth in the class L state tournament in Cape Girardeau Monday night against DeSoto.

Big Night For Mizzou

Kansas CITY (AP) — The Missouri Tigers can assure themselves of at least a tie for second place in the Big Eight Conference basketball race tonight by beating Kansas State at Manhattan.

The Bengals, with their best record in 50 years, planned to spend the afternoon watching the televised game in which Kansas sought to clinch first place in a game with Oklahoma at Lawrence.

If Kansas, 11-0, beats the Sooners, 8-4, Missouri will nail down undisputed possession of the runner-up spot with a triumph over the wildcats and will be listening for a bid to the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

Missouri is 9-3 in the conference and 17-7 over-all. If Oklahoma should upset Kansas and Missouri beats Kansas State, the title clinching for the Jayhawks would have to wait until next week.

Kansas State is 5-8 and closes out its season against the Tigers.

After the Oklahoma-Kansas contest, Nebraska, 7-5, faced slumping Colorado, 4-7, at Lincoln in the second half of the television doubleheader.

Oklahoma State climbed out of the cellar Friday night by downing Iowa State at Stillwater 69-63. Oklahoma State's victory made the Cowboy record 2-10 and dropped the Cyclones, 2-11, into the basement.

The Cowboys built a 39-19 lead in the first half. The Cyclones never got closer than six points thereafter despite Gene Mack's 18 points in the second half. Mack led all pointmakers with 24. Scott Alford was high for Oklahoma State with 16.

Kansas City Manual and Fredericktown will battle for the state Class M high school basketball title at Columbia tonight, while Wright City faces Stanberry in the Class S finals at Rolla.

Fredericktown upset defending champion Hermann 41-40 in Friday night's semifinals and Manual ran over Mount Vernon 82-51.

Wright City defeated Morrisville 78-65 and Stanberry took a 70-59 decision over Cairo.

Fredericktown rode to victory in the 19-point shooting of Rodney Denman. He offset a third period rally by Hermann and kept the Blackcats on top.

Larry Faerber hit his first five shots in the third period to send Hermann in front 26-22, but Denman put Fredericktown on top again at 30-29 and it stayed there.

Manual hit nearly 75 per cent of its field shots against Mount Vernon. Felix Jerman set the pace with 10 goals in 11 shots and 26 points, and Dan Pauley added 23. Ron Wynne led Mount Vernon with 19.

Manual takes a 23-2 record into the finals; Fredericktown is 26-3. Hermann, in its fourth straight year in the semifinals, went out at 30-2 . Wright City is again 28-4 and Stanberry 25-5 in the Class S finals.

Joe Bradshaw hit 27 points and Gordan Ring 18 for Wright City which ran up a 22-point lead in the third quarter against Morrisville.

Stanberry, with Jim Donovan scoring 24 points and taking 11 rebounds, pulled slowly and steadily away from Cairo.

Grapefruit League Action Begins

The Houston Astros have come up with a rookie shortstop, Roger Metzger, who Manager Harry Walker thinks may make the Astros a contender in the National League this season.

Never mind that Metzger was caught rounding first base too wide for an out that snuffed out a ninth inning rally as the Boston Red Sox beat the Astros 4-3 Friday in the opening of the major league exhibition baseball season.

"That's something we'll work on," Walker said. "The kid is a good runner, he's intelligent and a hard worker. We'll tell him what he did wrong and he won't make that mistake again. He made some plays in the field and got a hit in the ninth when we needed to keep things going."

In other opening games of the so-called Grapefruit League in Florida, the New York Yankees beat Washington 6-1, Atlanta downed Montreal 4-2 and Pittsburgh shaded the Chicago White Sox 2-1.

In the Cactus League in Arizona. Oakland blanked San Diego 2-0, San Francisco walloped the Chicago Cubs 9-4 and Milwaukee defeated the Tokyo Lotte Orions 6-4.

Stan Bahnsen, Bill Burbach and Ron Klimkowski combined for a two-hitter in pitching the Yankees over the Senators at Pompano Beach. Four singles by Ralph Garr and a two-run triple by Sonny Jackson helped the Braves overcome the Expos at West Palm Beach. The Pirates got only three hits, but made the most of them in shading the White Sox at Sarasota.

Vida Blue, Chris Floethe and Arthur Boyd combined for a three-hitter as the A's shut out the Padres. Homers by Ted Kubiak, Bill Voss, Danny Walton and Dave May paced the Brewers over the Orions at Tempe.

The Giants banged out 18 hits in bombarding the Cubs at Scottsdale.

SERVING THE STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF OF SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI, SINCE 1936

March...

Horoscopes For Week March 8 - March 14

PISCES: Many unusual people may help you during this seven -day period. Look for particular guidance from Sagittarius, possibly Virgo and Leos. Luck seeks you out wherever you hide. The only cautionary advice I might give you -- don't move ahead too fast and leave behind those problems concerned with your success. You most usually give more than you take. Use this creed of yours now. Take heed.

ARIES: Your cycle is not especially high, but a great deal of "fence -mending', can be accomplished in areas causing pressure. Some new facts, important may come to light before the end of the week. I hope you can see your way more clearly ; that minor irritants appear no longer troublesome. You will do well to cooperate with others at this point, assuming that you are in agreement with the policies put forth by those in authority. If not, don't be afraid to work overtime, if you need be, to get your points across.

TAURUS: Social activity should be high during the middle of the week; you find that your mate and you, or one close to you, may have many invitations of a public nature that may affect your standing in neighborhood affairs. Domestic situations may become basic during the latter part of the week, and should be thrashed out with the parties involved. A mysteriously conveyed message by a Scorpio or Cancer, could turn out to be a misunderstanding and need straightening out. In short, this seems to be a period when you are asked to be a mediator -- a necessary role that you may not particularly relish.

GEMINI: You can reach your potential during this seven -day week by keeping a careful watch on finances and book work; and be keeping those closest to you performing their chores peaceably. If problems come to light that may have been inadvertently caused by you, cheerfully go about rectifying your mistakes. The past weeks of dull routine, day by day, may seem unrewarding but they provide the necessary respite between periods of tremendous activity and make the whole pattern emerge clearer.

CANCER: You are going to be occupied by so many events that I can only say "good luck." Looking over some of the comparatively quiet periods in the last two months, the checkerboard becomes filled with pieces -- each important, each contributing to the game and how it is played. I have the feeling that later you will be engaged in a game of wits -- the outcome can only be the sum total of what you learned as a human being, and may reveal whole areas of your thinking that you never knew existed.

LEO: Your considerable background of information helps you to inform, as others seek the benefits of your knowledge. You may meet a number of interesting people with outlooks far different from your own at a large gathering. If an executive, you may be asked to speak at one of these events, to relate experiences, give important clues for success. No matter what your age, sex, occupation, this week calls for above -average participation in important events dealing with society at large.

VIRGO: You may feel a need to return to practicality on the 10th, 11th, and 12th. Your advice, help will probably be asked, and you can probably guide those favor -seekers in the direction you want them to head. From a personal view, you might explain the importance of self- discipline and the forming of good work habits. The point is not to be over - critical and talk down; be specific in your recommendations.

LIBRA: You have the power to further the kind of image you have been building. You are interested because you show interest in others; you can reach your potential because you are sincere; you do not need to fake emotions. This should prove whether you have built your ambitions on a solid foundation; if you haven't, any pretense will show through your carefully built -up facade.

SCORPIO: During this period, health may be stressed. If you are a parent, be sure children are physically well as they are sent back and forth to school; it is possible that eyes should be checked for glasses. If you have been putting off purchasing spring clothing, check bargains. A short shopping excursion with a Leo may be just what you need.

SAGITTARIUS: The most significant day is apt to be the 13th of this week when the moon moves into the section of your chart dealing with education, long journeys, schools, institutions. Communication that have been delayed may come to light; red tape may be cut; mislaid reports, letters, may turn up in unlikely places. You communicate but your thoughts may be difficult to translate into ordinary conversation.

CAPRICORN: It is time to make plans for the summer. Changes in the way of life of friends and family members may cause you unwelcome anxiety. You have the desire to speed issues, yet are held back by events you may not fully comprehend. It seems to be a murky film over transactions dealing with others, but a vague glimmer of a solution is ahead.

AQUARIUS: Changes that may have come about during the last two months regarding the shaping of your life, have made a deepening impression on you. These events give a glimmer of what the rest of the year holds. Recently you have been in a quandary about many of the facets that make up you life.

'Mame' Cast As Spring Production

Tryouts for "Mame," the third production of the Sikeston's Little Theatre group for the season, are set for Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the middle school music room.

Two local radio announcers are directors - Jim Wenneker will direct the speaking parts, and Ken White will lead the music selections.

"Mame" will be the first musical to include a stage band as part of the production, but a singing chorus and dancing chorus will also be needed.

One male juvenile lead is required, and other speaking parts are designed for adults.

Each year Little Theatre group stages a musical production for its last event of the year. "Sound of Music," "Finian's Rainbow," "Show Boat," "Oklahoma," and "South Pacfic," are some of the productions presented in past years.

Little Theatre group closed its second performance of the season last week with "The Desperate Hours." It concerned three escaped convicts who took refuge in ahome of a suburban family and how the family coped with the situation.

Opening dates for "Mame" will be April 29, 30, and May 1.

The directors urge persons who are interested to try out for the various speaking parts and musical selections.

They also commented that any person who is interested in construction of the sets, the lighting and the making of the costumes should attend the tryouts Sunday afternoon.

Home Management by Ruby

Hello! Since you heard from me last, we in home management have really kept busy. Test number two was given. Guess what? The boys are slowly coming up in the class!

Last week we learned how to store the spaghetti-strap formals! (You should hang it by the straps on a notched hanger!)

Floor plans were also made. Many were so enthusiastic--they went home and re-did their bedrooms. In order to make a floor plan, you must draw your room on a piece of graph paper. For furniture, you cut out pieces of paper. (However, I find the furniture section of Ward's catalogue offers much more of a variety.)

We are also learning how to arrange an efficient closet. Here are a few hints--store skirts and blouses together; because of the new dress lengths, get a layered dress hanger to keep the midis and maxis off the floor.

In order to clean a velvet formal, it is best to send it to the cleaners. However, if you are a brave person, here is how to take care of it at home. Lay the formal on a clean dry surface; take the steam iron and fill it with distilled water.

FRANK FILMS

NEW YORK (AP) — Paramount Pictures and Brodsky/Gould Productions, a joint venture headed by producer Jack Brodsky and screen star Elliott Gould, will produce Dr. David Reuben's best-selling non-fiction book "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex — But Were Afraid to Ask," it was announced by Robert Evans, Paramount's senior vice president in charge of world-wide production.

Student Body Announces Candidates

Five boys will be vying for student body offices in Sikeston high school Tuesday, March 30.

Candidates for student body president are Kenny Barkett, Hunter Moore, and John Sargent.

When interviewed, Kenny revealed his purpose in running for student body president when he remarked, "The students need a greater voice in the student government; this is one of the issues I would like to work on."

Kenny is an active member of Honor Society and the Bleacher Bums. He participates in school football and plays basketball with a church league.

Hunter decided his purpose of campaigning for student body president was the fact that he believes Sikeston high has the potential to accomplish many services for the school and needs a leader to put this potential to work for the coming year.

Hunter voiced the idea that student council is a good basis for the student voice in government and should set the example for the school, he said that it was up to the president and vice - president to set the example for the student council.

Hunter is a member of Honor Society, Top 10, Spanish Club, and he enjoys participating in tennis on the school's team.

Junior photographer John Sargent expressed his purpose in running for president as helping the student council remain doing a fine job. John's accomplishments include holding the position of president of the junior class, being an active member of Biology Club, and belonging to the Bleacher Bums.

Juniors running for student body vice - president are Jim Marshall and Robert Reynolds.

Jim has been a member of student council for three years and thinks this qualifies him to do a good job if elected. He feels being on the inside of student council gives him an insight on its problems and strong points.

Jim is a member of Honor Band, 8:30 band, and Spanish Club.

Robert Reynolds is running for student body vice - president because he feels he can do something constructive for the student body. One point he feels strongly on is school spirit.

Late Division Band Gives Concert Tuesday

LATE DIVISION BAND MEMBERS practice their concert pieces for their upcoming concert Tuesday evening in the cafetorium.

Musicians Make Debut For Public

Sikeston high school late division (8:30) band, directed by Ron Williams, will present its annual winter concert Tuesday evening in the Sikeston high school cafetorium.

Formal concert will begin at 7:30 with the traditional procession.

Band is composed of approximately 82 members, providing complete instrumentation for all numbers.

Seniors will be recognized by Mr. Williams, a tradition that has been carried on for many years.

Junior Jane Gray will play a piano solo, "Mountain Concerto," with band accompaniment. Jane, having played solos since the seventh grade, is an accomplished pianist.

"Fairest of the Fair" by John Philip Sousa will begin the program followed by "Fugue No. IV," by Johann Sebastian Bach.

An unusual piece will be the next selection. "Symphonic Invention" by Lloyd Conley features the brass section in the beginning, but the melody gradually flows to the woodwinds in many intricate patterns.

On the lighter side will be such favorite selections as "Pageant" by Vincent Persichetti, "Scenes from 'The Louvre'" by Norman Dello Joio, and "Czech Suite" by Paul W. Whear.

Band members cordially invite the public to attend and no admission will be charged. "We've worked hard, and it will be great!" remarked Mr. Williams.

FEDERAL FUNDS

CHICAGO (AP) — Federal highway funds for 1971 total $21.2 billion for improvements to federal, state and local highway systems.

Total receipts for 1971 are expected to be $1.6 billion more than the $21.6 billion total receipts in 1970, according to a report compiled by the Commerce Clearing House, a tax authority.

Highway disbursements will amount to $20.4 billion, plus $1.2 billion for retirement of bonds in 1971.

Capital outlays, including expenditures for right-of-way, engineering and construction, will amount to $12.2 billion or 60 per cent of total current disbursements. The 1971 outlays will be more than 9 per cent higher than in 1970.

Maintenance is expected to cost $4.8 billion or 24 per cent of the total. This is 6 per cent higher than in 1970.

Wide receiver Paul Hatley captains the Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.

ITED Test Date Set

Iowa Test of Educational Development will be administered on Thursday and Friday, March 18 and 19. This exam is given during the last quarter of each school year to all high school students. This is the 14th year for the test to be given in Sikeston high school.

Chester Masterson, senior counselor, said that the test has been revised this year. Tests will start at the regular school hours, but the exam has been shortened so that dismissal should be from one to two hours earlier than previous years.

Seniors and juniors will take the test Thursday and be dismissed from school on Friday for a long week end. Freshmen and sophomores will have a holiday on Thursday and will return to school for the test the following day.

Rosenquist Instructs Beneficial SHS Course

Robert Rosenquist, design drafting instructor, initiates each new group of students with an informative lecture on drafting, its varied purposes and benefits.

Mr. Rosenquist began his talk by asking,"What kind of drawing does drafting bring to mind?"

Most of the new students mentioned architectural work. In fact, they said that probably 85 per cent of design drafting is done in this area.

"Actually," Mr. Rosenquist said, "a maximum of only 20 per cent of the design drafters work in the architectural field. Most people have the mistaken impression that almost all drafting is done in the planning and designing of buildings."

To emphasize other areas of drafting and compare the time involved to architectural plans, Mr. Rosenquist said, "A set of house plans, with two to four bedrooms, might take 40 hours of work -- just one week. On the other hand just the body of a carburetor could take three weeks to design and draft."

"Multiply this by all the parts within a car and consider the amount of time a draftsman would have to work to produce all the components of an automobile."

"Architecture is a branch of drafting, but consider various articles in the home. Household appliances, such as washing machines, toasters, refrigerators, vacuums, are all drafted. Televisions, radios, stereos, and clocks; furniture, fixtures, and cabinets all have to be designed and drafted."

Mr. Rosenquist gave additional information for aspiring architects, "A minimum of six years of college is required with an additional three-year apprenticeship. After working under a registered architect, the drafter must take a state examination. This test usually takes four -14-hour days."

"Mechanical design is another form of drafting. This can include anything from a new style of dinnerware forks to the propelling mechanism in a jet aircraft. Mechanical design can be done for composite parts of a specific article in Spokane, Washington; Homestead, Florida; and Japan. These parts must be specifically made, so they can be perfectly assembled."

"A mechanical designer, as all other draftsmen, must be responsible for directions placed on the whiteprints. Most draftsmen no longer use a blueprint," Mr. Rosenquist explained, "they use a white paper with blue lines. All instructions for heat treatment, materials, and processing are specified on the print by the draftsman."

"Electro -mechanical drafting can be as complicated as a computer used in the space program to a pair of contact points. A car horn works on the principle of contact points, and is an example of the simplest form of electro - mechanical drafting."

"Tool design is an open field. Considering all the articles that are drafted is a minor job, when you think of the tools that are used to draft these objects. As a simple example of this take a mold. In plastic model car kits, parts come on a sprue tree with runners connecting individual parts. This seemingly insignificant job is done by a draftsman."

"Technical illustrators are also draftsmen. These people show how things are done. Their work is displayed in manuals, and directions for most equipment and appliances. A seven -man sled , used in practice football, includes a technical illustration showing how to assemble, disassemble, and replace parts. These illustrations are also used to train personnel to service appliances."

"Purpose of design drafting is to train the students to obtain a good entry level draftsman job."

"Any student entering an engineering field should at least take one course in design drafting," Mr. Rosenquist said. "Even a business administration major should take the course for general knowledge. For instance if a person is a buyer of parts or a purchasing agent, he should have some knowledge of identification and use of the parts he must purchase. This can be learned in drafting."

"Last year there were 17,000 new job openings in design drafting. In the next 10 years there will be 42 per cent more opportunities."

"Five to 10 per cent of draftsmen are women." Mr. Rosenquist added. "One woman works for the FAA designing approaching and landing strips for airports throughout the United States. Her salary is $15-18,000 annually, with travel expenses paid."

"Design drafting is a course which most students know little about, and many students should take." Mr. Rosenquist concluded, "We hope to have an open house soon so that students can visit the department during free periods or lunch. With this open house, we hope there will be an increased interest in the field of design drafting."

Peace Dividend Will Disappoint

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The peace movement's scenario has it this way: We end our involvement in Vietnam, bring the boys home and start spending all that bomb and bullet money on schools, hospitals, housing and ending pollution. Pretty soon we are living happily ever after, off again on the road to the Great Society.

Realistic?

Realistic, but only to a point, a point somewhere this side of the millenium. That is the conclusion of a study by Michael E. Levy, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, an economic research organization.

In a report on "The Vietnam Peace Dividend," Levy contends that ending the war will bolster federal funds available for domestic civilian use by, at most, $16 billion a year (in fiscal 1969 dollars). That's not exactly a pittance, but it's not enough to remake a nation of 200 million people whose federal government has a yearly budget of $200 billion.

"The people who see the end of the war as the grand solution are harboring hopes that will, I'm afraid, turn out to be excessive," Levy said. "Additional amounts of money are becoming available, but people who expect ending the war to solve all our problems will be disappointed."

Troop withdrawals have already freed part of the $16 billion dividend.

"There is a general unawareness that in a quiet way we have already absorbed part of the dividend," Levy explained. "The tax reform, for instance—it was essentially a tax cut—would probably not have been possible if our commitment in Vietnam had been continued at its previous levels."

Economists disagree about the cost of the war—because of inflation and the difficulty of determining what part of the Defense Department's budget (now nearly $80 billion a year) goes into fighting in Vietnam. Levy has blended several estimates, shaken them well and produced a result that puts the cost of the war in the $20-24 billion range for the year that ended June 30, 1969, the 12 months of our peak involvement.

When the war ends, however, it will not mean all that $20-24 billion has become available for civilian use.

In the classical economists' allegory, nations agonize over relative production decisions concerning guns and butter—military and civilian goods. Levy points out that when wars end, not all the guns are melted down into butter; some of them are melted down into new kinds of guns.

(A report by the federal government's General Accounting Office says the Pentagon has plans for 130 weapons projects it would like to start once the war ends. They would cost about $140 billion.)

This is what Levy calls "the ratchet effect," a historial tendency for this country to keep postwar defense spending higher than prewar levels. Since U.S. pre-Vietnam defense spending was higher than levels before this country's other wars, the post-Vietnam ratchet effect will probably be lower, Levy contends, but will still gobble up at least a fifth of the peace dividend.

Another eighth of the dividend will be tied up indefinitely in U.S. commitments to support the Saigon government, Levy adds.

That leaves the $13-16 billion his report indicates will become available for civilian use.

Levy says that those industries most likely to benefit from the peace dividend will be those associated with health and welfare services, food, consumer goods and construction.

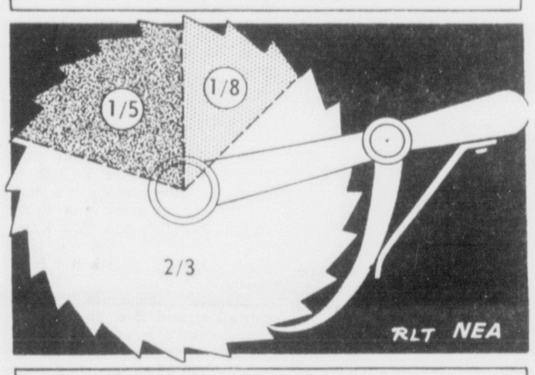
Other industries — notably aircraft and ordnance makers, electrical equipment manufacturers and producers of some metals—will suffer, at least until they make the transition to peacetime production.

Assistant Defense Secretary David Packard has predicted that 1.7 million defense jobs will be abolished this year, partly because of cuts in the armed forces, and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has submitted a bill that would provide $450 million to help industry make the guns-to-butter change-over.

Political decisions will ultimately decide what use the government will make of peace dividend money, Levy admits.

"An administration always reveals its priorities, and I've tried to take into account the priorities of the Nixon administration in making the report," he said.

THE RATCHET EFFECT



At least one-fifth of the funds released by a Vietnam settlement is likely to go back into defense spending as a result of the ratchet effect, the natural increase of postwar over prewar preparedness costs. Another eighth will be absorbed by continuing pacification and reconstruction obligations in Vietnam. At most, two-thirds of the post-Vietnam peace dividend will be available for domestic civilian use.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

Howard Kershner Edward Rowe

"Greedy" Capitalists

The other day a well-educated fellow raised an eyebrow about the concept of profit. "Too many businessmen are grasping and greedy, you see. They have dollar signs in their eyes. They go after profit for the sake of profit. Nothing else."

My reply to this well meaning gentleman went something like this: Under conditions of economic freedom and true competition, a man in business has a moral obligation to make a profit. Only when he does so are employees and managers given secure, income-producing opportunities which make it possible for them to support their families, their churches, their favorite charities and worthy causes.

Assuming that business is conducted within the framework of ethical and moral principles, and within the bounds of legality, it can do nothing but good. If this country had a thousand more millionaires, all of us would enjoy a higher standard of living.

Where there is no profit, research lags, development is retarded, jobs are lost and businesses fail. To paraphrase a Biblical verse, "Where there is no profit, the people perish!"

The miracle of the free economy is evident in the fact that any businessman, regardless of his political, religious or philosophical viewpoint, serves the cause of the consumers and has a part in raising their standard of living to the extent that he operates within the framework of freedom and competition.

Thus it is true that the heads of religious institutions would do well to perpetuate the principles of economic freedom, because even the atheistic businessman unknowingly supports these religious institutions, indirectly at least, by raising the living standards of those who contribute to them.

Profit is a good and wholesome concept; it serves the interests of us all.

Dare-Devil Stunt Fatal to Stella Boy

NEOSHO, Mo. (AP)— The highway patrol said a 16-year-old boy was killed while trying a dare-devil stunt near his home at Stella in southwest Missouri.

The victim was Gary Bailey. Investigators say young Bailey was riding on the hood of a car Tuesday night driven by 17-year-old Kervyn Cook of Fairview, another small town southeast of Neosho. Bailey apparently tried to climb over the top of the car, slipped and fell off

That's The Law

Groping Charlie Has Gripe

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Charley viewed himself as an unresistible Casanova. One night he looked deep into the eyes of his date and groped for words But, where he groped, he didn't find the words, just trouble. His date had him arrested on charges of having taken indecent liberties with her.

Vehemently denying the charge, Charley really hit the ceiling however, when he found himself standing trial in a national guard armory.

"Somebody's trying to make a federal case out of a little love making," he protested. "If I'm going to stand trial, I want to stand trial in a courtroom. In an armory, with its atmosphere of militancy and hostility, no decent accused criminal stands a chance."

"Sorry," was the answer, "but the local courthouse is falling apart and isn't safe. Even the termites are getting out. Consequently, the armory will have to do,"

And, it did do, but not too good for Charley. Convicted, he immediately appealed for a new trial on the grounds that his trial was not conducted "in open court" as required by law but in an armory.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE , would you grant groper Charley a new trial?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the use of the temporary facilities for Charley's trial did not prejudice him even if it was conducted in an armory; that the trial was conducted calmly and with decorum, and with all the solemnity warranted by the proceeding. Thus, he was not deprived of any of his rights.

Telephone Rates to Be Increased

MALDEN — Due to unprecedented growth in the number of telephones in the Malden calling area, which includes Gideon and Risco, telephone rates are scheduled to be adjusted April 29, according to Clarence Lierz, Southwestern Bell manager.

"It should be pointed out that telephone rates in Missouri are based uniformly on the number of telephones which customers can call without paying a Long Distance charge," Lierz explained. "Throughout the state, telephone exchanges of similar size have the same rates. Malden telephone service has simply outgrown its present rate group."

The manager said that in 1960 for example, there were approximately 1,540 telephones in the Malden calling area. However, today, telephone users in Malden can call more than 5,050 telephones toll free. This means that callers can reach some 227 per cent more telephones now than they could just 10 years ago.

"The schedule increases in rates amounts to only 25 cents per month for residence customers," Lierz said. "The increase for business customers with individual lines is one dollar per month, for suburban business customers, 40 cents per month, and for rural business customers, 30 cents per month. The rate for semi - public coin service will be raised 90 cents a month."

Lierz said the rate adjustment also will apply to Southwestern Bell customers in Gideon and Risco. He added that all customers involved in the rate adjustment will be notified by letter.

Following are the new monthly rates that are scheduled to become effective on April 29, 1971. Federal, state or city taxes are not included. There will be no change in the rates for business or residence extension telephones.

RESIDENCE
One-party	$4.35
Two-party	$3.65

Eight-party	$3.25

AFDC Rising at Unprecedented Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's major welfare program is continuing to record unprecedented increases of more than 200,000 recipients and $120 million a month, according to the government's latest statistics.

Figures for November 1970, the latest period available, show an additional 282,000 men, women and children added to the welfare rolls in November over the previous onth in the program of aid to families with dependent children. At this rate the annual increase would be 3.4 million persons.

Based on a per-person cost of $600-plus, the increase would cost all levels of government an additional $2.5 billion.

The annual increase in AFDC rolls has accelerated from one million persons two years ago to two million one year ago.

But November's record jump is deceiving, according to officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. They say it includes a transitory, 70,000 addition of striking General Motors workers in Michigan.

Welfare rolls traditionally increase in winter months when outdoor seasonal work is not available, the officials added.

Nevertheless, the three months preceding November each recorded jumps of more than 200,000 recipients and a record 9.4 million were on family welfare rolls in November with an additional 4.2 million persons receiving assistance to the aged, blind and disabled.

Welfare specialists attribute the continuing increase to three factors: Mounting unemployment, recent court and administrative rulings easing restrictions on relief eligibility and publicity campaigns by poverty lawyers and the National Welfare Rights Organization encouraging poor persons to apply for aid.

Steele Deeds Site For State Prison

STEELE, — Construction of an 8.5 - million -dollar maximum security prison at Steele came a step closer to reality Tuesday as city officials presented the State of Missouri a deed for a 79-acre tract on which to build the prison — plus easement rights for another 139 acres.

When Mayor Ed Aumon handed the deed to Fred T. Wilkinson, direcotr of the Missouri Department of Corrections, it indicated the city finally had cleared a hurdle it stumbled over last summer.

The Federal Aviation Administration, after World War II, gave the City of Steele a 640-acre tract complete with a runway.

The deed stipulated that none of the land could be sold or given away if it eventually was to be used for non -aviation purposes.

That restriction complicated matters for the city, since it was offering to give the State of Missouri about 200 acres on which to build the 300-inmate prison.

The FAA lifted its restriction after the city established an airport fund, "putting a certain amount into the fund," according to an informed source.

Mayor Aumon could not be reached for comment on how much money the city paid into the fund.

It may be several years before the prison, which would entploy 75 to 100 persons, becomes a reality. Funds for its construction have not been appropriated by the Missouri legislature.

The money is part of a 250-million- dollar state building program now being pondered by the legislature. If the program is approved, Missourians still will have to give their approval in a statewide bond election.

Once construction is begun, the facility would be completed in about two years.

"WHY CAN'T HE JUST WALK IN HIS SLEEP?"

Williams and Harper Head Committee

In a planning meeting of the Chamber of Commerce for the annual Farmers Recognition dinner, in November, Ken Williams and John F. Harper were made co-chairmen. The meeting was called by Don Bohannon, chamber president.

The two men will supervise the arrangements and contact all organizations. Area service club members with their farm guests will be an addition to the group in attendance last November that numered almost 300.

May 19 will be the date of the next committee meeting when reports will be heard from club organizations.

James Beaird, member of the steering committee, announced that the Chamber will accept nominees for Man of the Year April 29, and urged members to call or write the Chamber office giving their choice, and state his qualifications and accomplishments.

The award is open to anyone who is a resident of Sikeston.

Sea God's Daughters

The Gorgons of Greek mythology were the three daughters of the sea god Phorcys. Stheno and Euryale were the two immortal sisters; Medusa was a mortal being, not a goddess.

Hannibal and the Alps

One of the favorite stories of ancient history is that Hannibal, the Carthaginian general who invaded Italy from the north in 218 B.C., cut a road through the Alps by pouring vinegar on the rocks.

Crash Hurts Driver, Kills Three Cows

HAYTI—A 46-year-old Dyer, Tenn., cattle truck driver received cuts in accident Friday two miles north of Hayti on Highway 55 when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel and ran off the road.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the driver, James Dunagan, was taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital with back cuts.

The accident occurred, the patrol said, when Dunagan apparently fell asleep, ran off the right side of the road and overturned.

He was driving a 1967 International tractor trailer south.

According to Dunagan, there were 32 to 33 head of cattle in the truck. The patrol said only 28 head had been accounted for by 8 a.m. Fri Three of the cows were dead and two were injured severely. Officers said the rest of the herd had been rounded up and were temporarily penned up near the Hayti outskirts.

Portageville Man Heads New Board

MALDEN — The first meeting of the newly formed Bootheel civil defense advisory board was held Wednesday in the office of the Bootheel Regional Palnning Commission.

This is another regional activity that is sponsored by the commission in cooperation with the Disaster Planning and Operations Office, Civil Defense, Jefferson City.

Charles A. Penman, Portageville, was elected chairman of the board.

Walter Clark, emergency shelter planning officer; Carl Carson, Jr., communication and warning officer; and Pearlie Lukehart, training officer, all of Jefferson City, were present.

These men informed the board of activities involved in civil defense planning. Such things as shelter planning in the event of natural disaster, a warning system to get information to areas not normally reached by official radio, training courses available for civil defense, and steps necessary to qualify a town or county for a civil defense program. This latter qualification would make the political subdivision applying eligible for participation in federally financed assistance programs.

The board has gone on record to make every effort to implement a general civil defense preparedness program on a regional basis. This approach recommended by the National Civil Defense office in Washington, D.C.

"The roads were so cotton pickin' bad in the winter that there were two ways to go on a date — walk or ride a horse," he said. "You always hoped there would be a girl at the end of the trip. I said hope because it wasn't always a cinch."

In the summer and fall Johnson said someone would always have a country dance.

"The rugs were rolled up and the furniture pushed back then, someone would grab a fiddle and the fun would begin."

Johnson said his dating was limited by his financial situation.

"If we were broke we often had a parlor date, but that was embarassing."

"There was a time when I would have a dollar and a half for a weekend and on that we could buy three gallons of gas for 50 cents so that left you a buck. On Saturday night you could always bump into a friend or two at the Bijou, located where Hale's Jewelry store is today. We could go to the movie on Sunday afternoon have a barbeque and Coke and still have enough money to make it home."

Today's youth, Johnson says, has to be entertained so often and it has to be so exciting and removed from the norm, that money doesn't matter.

"Kids allow themselves to become bored so easily today that it requires something spectacular to hold their interest," he said.

I then decided to reach a little farther into the past and make a comparison with the dating habits of 60 years ago. I was told in no uncertain terms that things just aren't what they used to be.

Two most adoreable young women of yesteryear spoke freely of their past but wished to remain unnamed.

"A big date for us was to take a walk on a Sunday afternoon to Morehouse and if we were lucky we would get there in time to catch the evening train home to Sikeston."

The two agreed that the differences today is that kids are dating younger, marrying younger, and morals are different.

"When we were dating, goodnight kissing and necking was out if you didn't get caught at it," they said.

The women spoke of horse and buggy dates and party games such as fruit basket and spin the plate.

"We had just as much fun then as they do today," they said. "It just took a lot less to entertain us."

I spoke with six dating age, eligible men and the main topic of discussion was the "death of Sikeston", I tried in vain to point out that kids 50 years ago didn't think it was so hot but that didn't matter.

The variety of entertainment areas today includes bowling, miniature golf, movies, night spots, social events and church gatherings, but as one frustrated teen ager said:

"You can only bowl so often and see the same movie so many times."

Times may change and years may slowly pass into decades but young people will always complain that there is nothing to do and nowhere to go and their parents will smile with the wisdom of their years and say: "You think you got it rough, well when I was a kid we didn't have.....

Ancient Ailment

Arthritis has been in existence for at least 100 million years, with traces of the illness having been found in the skeleton of a Neanderthal man dating from around 40000 B.C. and in dinosaurs of the Mesozoic period, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.
